VOL. XL—JANUARY, 1904

SALEM, MASS.

PRINTED FOR THE ESSEX INSTITUTE

1904

THE historical or genealogical student, searching for data in the cities and towns of eastern Massachusetts, cannot consider his task completed until he has consulted the volumes of Historical Collections issued by the Essex Institute.

Valuable historical investigations from original sources are here brought to the attention of the scholar and a long list of public records and vital statistics have been printed in the pages of the Collections.

These Collections are published quarterly, each volume containing over 400 pages and an exhaustive index. The fortieth volume, beginning with the issue of January, 1904, will contain a large amount of original matter, such as, Beverly First Parish Church Records; Gardner Genealogy; Salem Custom House Registers, 1789-1850; English Records Relating to Early New England Families; Salem Town Records, Volume II; Abstracts of Essex County Wills Probated in Suffolk County; Pepperrell Genealogy, and much other historical and miscellaneous matter.

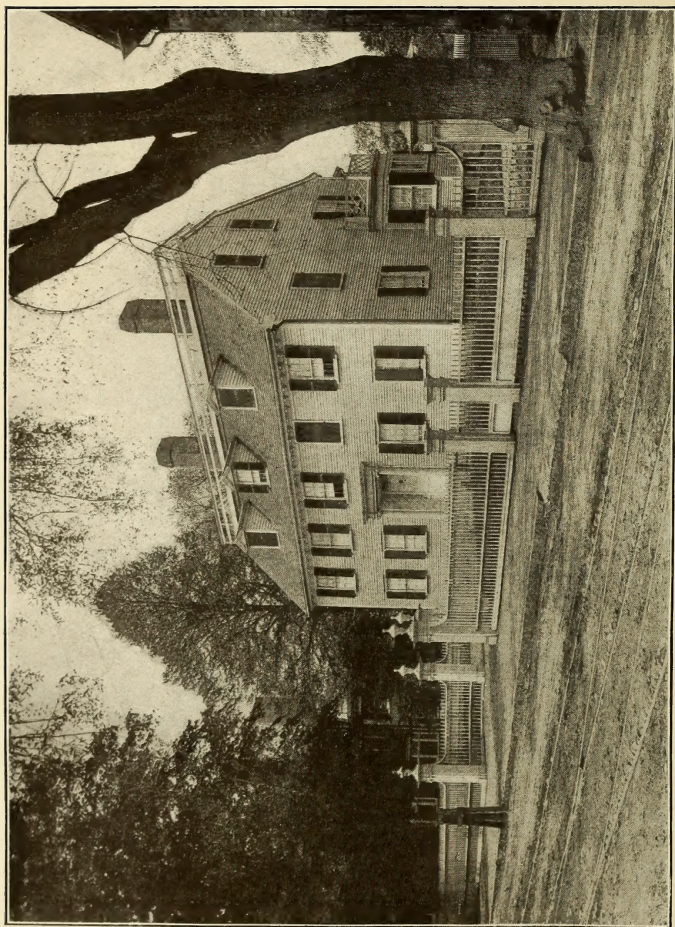

Among the genealogies to be found in the volumes already issued are the following: Allen, Bray, Chipman, Clark, Clarke, Conkling, Corwin, Esty, Fabens, Gedney, Gould, Graves, Hawkes, Hutchinson, Houlton-Holton, King, Lyford, Newhall, Perkins, Pillsbury, Plummer, Prince, Rantoul, Richardson, Russell, Silsbee, Sparhawk, Townsend, Webb and Woodbury. Also records and vital statistics from Beverly, Boxford, Danvers, Hamilton, Ipswich, Lynn, Lynnfield, Marblehead, Peabody, Salem, Saugus, Topsfield and Wenham. Abstracts of wills, deeds and journals frequently appear; biographical sketches and memoirs; tombstone inscriptions, etc. etc.

Subscription $2.00 per annum.

THE NATHANIEL ROPES ESTATE.

By the will of Mary Pickman Ropes, dated June 2, 1900, and admitted to Probate, November 9, 1903, the Essex Institute acquires a residuary interest in the fine old homestead estate on Essex Street in Salem, opposite the head of Cambridge Street. This bequest is made for the purpose of establishing and maintaining, in Salem, a free public School of Botany, as a perpetual memorial to the family of Nathaniel Ropes. To carry this noble design into effect, an interest in considerable parcels of real estate in Salem and Danvers, and in various enumerated stocks and bonds, together being sufficient for the endowment of such a school, are also devised to the Essex Institute, thus assuring to the public a free School of Botany, provided with means enough to make it a lasting boon and ornament to Salem and the County. The conditions enjoined upon the Essex Institute in the administration of this trust seem, so far as it is possible to anticipate the test of actual experience, to be such as the Institute, had it been consulted, would have desired to prescribe in accepting the gift.

The kindly inclination of the Testatrix towards the Essex Institute was already matter of record. She was for years an active member of the Institute, and had also been a member of the Woman's History Class during the period of its activity, and there is on its files, deposited with us, a paper prepared by Miss Ropes, and presented February 19, 1895, dealing with the genealogy of a branch of the Orne Family which was connected with her own. It closes with these appreciative words: "At some future time, when sufficient data had thus been collected, it would be a pleasure to revise, amend, supplement or even rewrite the present manuscript, if thereby it might become a true and reliable history of John Horne, worthy of preservation in the archives of the only Essex Institute."

The gift of a School of Botany will greatly enlarge the equipment of the Institute. We have been sadly unable, of late years, from various causes, to do anything like justice to our obligations to science. No one whose privilege it was to know Dr. Asa Gray, needs to be told how delightful a study is botany. A large element in the working force of the Institute has always been contributed by women, and with women a knowledge of botany is ever a specially graceful accomplishment. Had the Essex Institute accepted, in 1867, the conditions of the munificent offer of the London banker, George Peabody, our scientific side would, since that day, have been more adequately developed. Now at last we shall be able to do, for botany certainly, our full share. And the Institute may well congratulate not only itself but the general public around it, on the broad outlines of the gift sketched by the Testatrix.

The terms of the will are as follows:

"I give and bequeath to my sister, Eliza Orne Ropes, if she be living at my decease, all the property both real and personal of which I die possessed, to have and to hold the same so long as she shall live, and to invest or dispose of the income as she may wish. Upon the decease of my sister Eliza Orne Ropes, I desire that the following disposition shall be made of my real estate and personal property.

"To the Essex Institute, Salem, Massachusetts, I give all my one-half interest in the house No. 318 Essex street—the Nathaniel Ropes homestead for four generations, with the ground under and the garden attached thereto, — my one-half interest also in the furniture, carpets, silverware, china, portraits and other pictures, books, trunk of antique clothing, watches, jewelry, bric-a-brac, etc., etc., that the house may not, in the least degree, be dismantled, but stand forever as a memorial to the family of Nathaniel Ropes. It is my wish that the house shall be kept open to visitors, who may desire to see the collection of household antiques, and that a custodian shall live in the house for the care and preservation of the same and its contents. It is my wish that no public meetings or crowded receptions shall be held in the house, and that visitors shall not be admitted in crowds. It is my wish that the garden attached to the house shall be used for the cultivation of such flowers, plants, shrubs, trees &c as may be useful in the study of botany, leaving always the forest-trees on the fore-ground as they have been for many years, and that the grounds shall be kept open for the enjoyment of the public so far as practicable, and shall be freely used by all students of botany whether in public schools or private classes. To encourage an interest in the study of botany in the City of Salem, it is my wish that as good an instructor as can be obtained shall hold classes in the house, annually, for as many weeks or for as many lectures as the management of the Institute may approve— the class in no instance to exceed the capacity of one of the eastern rooms upon the lower floor of the house. As I shall hereafter provide for the expense of these lectures, it is my wish that the instruction shall be free to all who desire to benefit by it, the management of the Institute making only such conditions and rules as may be deemed necessary in furthering the best interests of the class. In order that the Essex Institute may, without financial embarrassment, carry out the intention of the testatrix in making the above bequests, I give and bequeath to the Essex Institute the following real and personal property, the income of which to be applied to the support of the objects named above.

"a. All my one-half interest in the house next east of the Homestead, with the ground under and the yard attached thereto, known as No. 316 Essex Street. If, at the expiration of three years, or any time thereafter, the management of the Essex Institute shall find that there has been a sufficient accumulation of funds to provide for the perpetual care of the homestead and grounds, the house No. 316 Essex street may be taken down and the grounds thrown open to improve the appearance of the street.

"b. All my one-half interest in seven houses on Broad street, Nos. 19 1/2 to 25 1/2, with ground under and attached.

All my one-half interest in six houses on Hathorne street, Nos. 5 1/2 to 9 1/2, in all five, and No. 8 on the west side of the street, with ground under and attached to all the houses.

All my one-half interest in Orne Square — the houses on both sides of the street with the ground under and attached to all the houses.

My one-half interest in a lot of land in Danvers, Essex County, Massachusetts.

My one-half interest in the Boston Water Power Stock.

All my shares of stock of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston.

"The income of the above investments shall be applied to the care and preservation of the homestead and grounds No. 318 Essex street and, should there be a surplus annually or at the end of any fiscal year, it shall go toward the establishment of a Fund to meet any extraordinary expense that may arise in the future, or to purchase adjoining property should there be an opportunity, so that the lot may acquire something of its original dimensions and finally open through to Federal street.

"c. My old Colony Railroad bonds, six in number, $6000.00, the income to be applied to the course of lectures or class-instruction in botany. The above gifts to the Essex Institute are on the express condition that said Essex Institute substantially carry out and fulfil the above directions and wishes of the testatrix as above set forth."

We now come to consider in more detail the estate in which the Institute has just acquired, through the munificence of Miss Mary Pickman Ropes, a valuable interest. The mansion house of Nathaniel Ropes, which now occupies the Essex Street front of the estate except for a narrow dwelling at its eastern corner, probably dates back to 1719, and has been in the Ropes name since 1768. The smaller building has, at different periods, served 'Squire Savage as an office, — Mayor Stephen Palfrey Webb as a residence, — and Dr. Henry Osgood Stone as a consulting room. On the 7th of January, 1718, the day on which General Israel Putnam was born, his father owned the Ropes estate.

Nathaniel Ropes, the first of the name and the father of that Nathaniel who, in 1768, bought this estate, was born at Salem, in the terrible Witchcraft year. He is the grantee in a deed from the heirs of "the Honourable Colonel John Hathorne, esquire, deceased," conveying to him, August 2, 1726, a part of the Hathorne homestead estate. He was of the third generation from George Ropes, who was here as early as 1637, and was a Church member and a landholder soon after. The grandson, the first Nathaniel, married Abigail Lindall Pickman, daughter of Captain Benjamin Pickman, born in February, 1706, and who died in 1775. On the lot bought of the Hathorne heirs in August, 1726, since known as the John Appleton property and lying on the southerly side of the Main Street a little west from Town House Square, he built a homestead appraised, April 15, 1774, at £800. He died, October 22, 1752, as his gravestone in the Broad Street Cemetery attests, at the age of sixty.

This Nathaniel, the first of the name, had by his wife Abigail an only child and namesake, born May 20, 1726, who died, tragically, March 18, 1774, in the house which is the subject of this paper, and which he bought, November 30, 1768, from the Barnard heirs, kinsmen of the Reverend Thomas Barnard of North Bridge celebrity. The estate, which he was previously occupying, extended to the North River. He married, September 25, 1755, Priscilla, daughter of the Reverend John Sparhawk, sometime pastor of the First Church in Salem and a kinsman of Sir William Pepperrell. She died, March 19, 1798, and rests by his side near Summer Street at the Old Burying Hill. It is not without interest to know that both the Barnards and the Ropeses had an ancestor killed at Bloody Brook.

The maternal grandparents of Priscilla Sparhawk were the Reverend Aaron and his wife Susan (Sewall) Porter, and it was their wedding, celebrated on Oct. 22, 1713, of which Chief-Justice Samuel Sewall gives, in his famous diary, so quaint a picture as having occurred at the residence of his brother, Registrar Stephen Sewall, living at the time on Essex, near Sewall Street. The entry in Judge Sewall's diary for the day of the wedding of his niece is a curious medley of Church Psalmody and Sack-Posset. Sack-Posset was a curd flavored with wine and spice, — a choice dainty at weddings.* Among the guests are named Madam Leverett, and Neighbor Hirst and his wife. "Was a pretty deal of Company present; Many young Gentlemen and Gentlewomen." Mr. Noyes, the officiating clergyman, "made a Speech, — said Love was the Sugar to sweeten every Condition in the married Relation. Pray'd once. Did all very well. After the Sack-Posset, &c. Sung the forty-fifth Psalm from the eighth verse to the end, five staves. I set it to Windsor Tune. I had a very good Turkey-Leather Psalm-Book which I look'd in while Mr. Noyes Read: and then I gave it to the Bridegroom saying, 'I give you this Psalm Book in order to your perpetuating this Song: and I would have you pray that it may be an Introduction to our Singing with the Choir above.' I lodg'd at Mr. Hirst's." Major Hirst's son married Chief-Justice Sewall's daughter.

The second Nathaniel, the only child of Nathaniel and Abigail, born May 20, 1726, was graduated at Harvard in 1745, and chose the Law for his profession. He achieved an early distinction at the Bar. He was chosen to represent Salem in the General Court for 1760-61, and thereupon was appointed one of four Justices of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for the County, and from 1762 to 1768 inclusive was also a member of the Executive Council. He was Chief Justice of the Inferior

* Mass. Hist. Coll. Fifth Series, Vol. VI, pp. 403-4-5.

Court of Common Pleas for six years, and was for six years Judge of Probate for this County, holding these responsible positions from 1766 until 1772, when he resigned them to become a Justice of the Superior Court of Judicature. At the last named date he was elected a Ruling Elder of the First Church in Salem. The intolerable arrogance of the Mother Country was now hastening to its inevitable issue. In 1773, at its first session, the General Court began to insist that the Judges should receive no compensation from the Crown and, on March 3, a Resolution had passed enacting, as the opinion of the Lower House, "that, while the Justices of the Superior Court hold their Commissions during Pleasure, any one of them who shall accept of and depend upon the Pleasure of the Crown for his Support, independent of the Grants and Acts of the General Assembly, will discover to the World that he has not a due Sense of the Importance of an Impartial Administration of Justice, that he is an enemy to the Constitution, and has it in his Heart to promote the Establishment of an arbitrary Government in the Province." In February, 1774, four of the Judges, namely Trowbridge, Hutchinson, Ropes, and Cushing, replied to the Assembly that they had received no part of the allowance from the King. Before his fatal illness Judge Ropes had resigned his Judicial office.

Three sons and three daughters composed his household. The eldest son, born June 13, 1759, succeeded to his name, and lived at different times in Salem and on his farm at Danvers. He was a merchant, and died, August 8, 1806. This third Nathaniel married, April 17, 1791, Sarah, the daughter of Dr. Ebenezer Putnam. His brother John married a daughter of Jonathan Haraden, the famous sea-fighter and captain of the "Tyrannicide." Another son died young. Of the three daughters of Judge Ropes, one married William Orne, a merchant, whose daughter Eliza, becoming the wife of Judge Daniel Appleton White, the first President of the Institute, was the mother of an only child, the Reverend William Orne White, and through him the grandmother of Eliza Orne White, a writer of distinction. Another daughter of Judge Ropes married Jonathan Hodges, a kinsman of Joseph Hodges Choate. The third married Samuel Curwen Ward, and became the mother of George Atkinson Ward and the grandmother of George Rea Curwen.

The fourth Nathaniel, born at Salem, October 14, 1793, was a son of Nathaniel last named by his wife Sarah. He married, July 10, 1826, Sarah Evans Brown of Cincinnati, Ohio, where he resided and was a merchant and where he died July 19, 1885. They had three sons, one of them, the last Nathaniel (H. U. 1855), born at Cincinnati, January 7, 1833, who immediately after graduation, established himself at Cincinnati, and was for ten years in business there with his father, and after 1866 resided in the ancestral home at Salem with his widowed aunt, Mrs. Joseph Orne. He built Orne Square. Henry FitzGilbert Waters and James Arthur Emmerton were among his classmates. He was an active member of the Essex Institute after 1870, and died at Salem, February 6, 1893.

The estate upon which Judge Nathaniel Ropes lived, and which he bought from the heirs of Samuel Barnard in 1768, was a narrow strip six or seven rods wide, and originally extended, like all the adjoining estates, from the Main Street to the North River. In 1765-8 the new thoroughfare, now known as "Federal Street," was pushing its way across these elongated parcels of land, until it finally superseded the eight-foot pathway along the river-bank, beside which the early settlers, in those primitive times when most of their transportation was water-borne, had beached their "water-horses." From time to time, rear lots had been set off from the Ropes estate, and when these ancestral acres had been reduced to the area lying south of Federal Street, Federal Court was laid out, and lots on both sides of it were sold until, of the whole original acreage, less than fifty thousand square-feet now stand recorded in the family name.

It was no unnatural impulse of the Testatrix,—a close student of our past,—which moved her to provide that the ancient lines of this domain might be restored, if opportunity should offer, as far as Federal Street, and that the estates about Federal Court might be acquired by purchase from time to time for the Botanical School, and thus added to the Memorial estate.

THE NATHANIEL ROPES ESTATE, WITH ITS SURROUNDINGS.

The mansion house was probably built about 1719. It seems to have superseded a more modest dwelling, probably built near the same spot, by Philip Veren, before 1662. The title to the estate passed through Putnams, Lindalls and Barnards to Nathaniel Ropes.

The lines of the original estate, which, to some considerable extent the Institute may possibly be enabled to restore, ran, as we have seen, from the Main Street to the North River. There was no Federal Street laid out before 1765, and before 1750 there was no suspicion of the lane which foreshadowed it, and which bore at different periods such names as "the town way," "the back street" and "the new street," until, in 1792, it was officially designated by the name of Federal Street.

The story of the Toppan-Pickman-Emmertons homestead, adjoining the Ropes estate on the west, it is not difficult to state. In 1640 this was the residence of Allan Kynaston or Kenniston, "mariner," whom Mr. Henry F. Waters has traced as having married, at St. Dunstan's, Stepney, Ratcliffe, July 2, 1628, Doraty or Dorothy Turduffe, and she it must have been who, becoming Kynaston's or Kenniston's widow, married, before 1665, Philip Cromwell, "slaughterer," and thus put him in possession of this estate. She died, Sept^r 2, 1673, at the age of sixty-seven, as the slate-stone slab standing in the Charter Street Ground records, and her remains enjoy the unique distinction of resting under the most ancient grave-stone now preserved in Salem. From Leaf seven of the first Book of recorded Essex Deeds it appears that this home was once strangely hypothecated after this wise: "Phillip Cromwell, before he married his now wife Dorothy Kynaston, did covenant to give hir tenn Cowes and for hir security thereof did make over to the said Dorothy his Dwelling house & ground and the house the said Dorothy then lived in, as by a writing Dated the tenth day of the 2d moneth 1649 more at Lardge ap'eth." In 1680 Cromwell conveyed this estate to William Hirst, and from Hirst it passed, after 1717, to Mary Barton Toppan who became, April 22, 1762, the wife of Dr. Thomas Pickman, a son of Col. Benjamin Pickman, and they built upon it, about 1812-18, the fine, brick mansion, so greatly improved, in 1885, by the Emmertons, and since then the residence of that family.

Between 1807 and 1810 there seem to have stood on this estate several little shops. At this period and later, when travel from Boston entered the town through Boston Street, the section of the Main Street from Buffum's Corner to North Street was a favorite resort of retail trade. Small dealers of every kind found a mart for their traffic there, and the late Samuel P. Andrews was able, in 1888, to enumerate thirty-four mechanics' and retailers' shops standing, in his school-days, on Essex Street between North and Beckford Streets, and a dozen more, before Buffum's Corner was reached.* The sadlery of James Bott, a shop kept by one Batters, and the famous rooms of the barber, Benjamin Blanchard, where his patrons wrote out, while waiting for their turns, a unique record of passing events,—these and other small shops shared the two estates now occupied by the Ropes house and the lordly mansion-house of Dr. Pickman.

On the area now occupied, since 1836, by the North Meeting House, lived, about 1807, according to the recollection of the late Jonathan Tucker, stated to Mr. William P. Upham in 1871, 'Squire Ezekiel Savage, and in 1810 Deputy Sheriff Daniel Dutch. The "Widow Felt" had a dwelling and dry-goods shop next, and James W. Stearns a grocery and drug-store. There were chair-makers and painters and hard-ware dealers, and possibly other tradesmen, and next came the "Gibbs" or "Osgood" heirs occupying the house and shop to the east,—and then the homestead of "William Ward, merchant", and finally the Roger Williams, or Corwin, or Witch House, — these three still standing.

The troubles with the Mother Country reached an acute stage in 1774, and found Judge Ropes in middle life with a family looking to him for its support,—a citizen well established in business and in the affectionate regard of the community he served. He was, according to George Atkinson Ward, a well-read and able jurist, and a highly valued magistrate. John Adams, in deprecating the turbulence of the times, said in his diary of the Judges; "Three of them I could call my friends. Chief Justice Oliver and Judge Ropes, abstracted from their politics, were amiable men, and all of them were very respectable and virtuous characters." But he was loyal at heart to the dynasty under which he had grown to manhood, and to which he owed his official standing, and could not at once bring himself to recognize the fact that the Royal Commission he was holding was destined to be one of the last ever issued to an Essex County Justice, or, if that fore-knowledge were perhaps vouchsafed to him, to feel that it made disloyalty to one's convictions any the less reprehensible and cowardly. He clung to the misguided dynasty of the day, and to its supporters. He died too early to be an "addresser" of Governor Hutchinson or of Governor Gage. Doubtless he would have been of those who made up the "grand procession" of loyalists moving out from Salem in carriages, in the saddle and on foot, over the old Danvers road, to receive Gage and his stately escort on their way from Boston. Doubtless he would have borne his part in the welcome extended to the new Chief Magistrate, at the Assembly House which stood at the foot of Assembly Court,* as he had before taken part in the ball given there, by the son of Governor Bernard, in 1768. And doubtless he would have been conspicuous in the last reception and military ball tendered there to Governor Hutchinson, in April, 1774; for absence, on the part of a high court-dignitary in good standing with the Crown, from semi-official functions like these, could not have failed to subject him to injurious remark. Doubtless he would have illuminated the windows of this very mansion, giving as they did on Assembly Court, when, on the night after Gage's arrival, the windows of the Assembly House and of all the neighborhood were ablaze for the last time to hail with joy the birthday of a King. How should he know that conventional honors to crowned heads were destined no longer to be paid in his native town? It is not easy to abandon in a moment, at the behest of others, the habits and convictions of an honest life. And those facile souls who profess to do so, or are thought to do so, are not sure to be rewarded with the lasting confidence of their fellow-men. Judge Ropes retained his office, unconscious of wrong-doing, and scrupulously performed its duties. His self-respect was unimpaired. He had seen no occasion to resign. When the ground was taken that officials of the Province should not accept emoluments from the government which had commissioned them, Judge Ropes could reply that he had not done so, but he remained loyal at heart. Popular fury would brook no middle ground. The fine old house became a target for the mob. The windows which might have blazed in honor of Bernard and Hutchinson and Gage, and of the last King's birthday ever acclaimed on Massachusetts soil, were wrecked in wrath. His presence at the door was called for, but without response, and the door was forced. The Judge was, at the moment, stretched half-conscious in the feverish delirium of a dying bed. Next day he died, cut short in his career at the age of forty-eight, his end hastened by the brutality of the mob.

* See Bulletin of the Essex Institute, Vol. XX, p. 175: Note.

The stranger, who approaches our main thoroughfare through Cambridge Street, finds himself confronted with a scene of interest and beauty. Looking to the right he will observe, at the intersection of North Street, the most ancient dwelling-house known to be standing in New England, — a structure associated with Roger Williams, with Judge Jonathan Corwin, and with the trials for Witchcraft. Next above it on the west stands the former home, for the years between 1811 and 1823, of the great astronomer, Nathaniel Bowditch, at that time President of the Essex Fire and Marine Insurance Company. Then comes another well-kept wooden homestead, with gambrel roof and old Provincial porch and massive chimneys, abutting on the grounds of the fine, stone church-edifice of English design, built by the North Parish in 1836. On this site was once the orchard of the famous Quaker champion, Thomas Maule, — a name the "House of Seven Gables" has made almost as well known to English readers as that of any character in Scott or Dickens.

Immediately before him, the stranger looks upon a dignified, pre-revolutionary, wooden mansion with its stately trees and ample lawns, and beyond it, towards the west, he sees the beautiful brick residence built by Dr. Pickman, which dates its present elegance from the occupancy of the late George Ropes Emmerton. The noble sweep of the broad, elm-arched roadway, as it bears off towards the City Library and the Upper Town, and the comfortable and sightly homes which flank it on either side, lead the eye pleasantly along over a picture which, seen in summer, it is not easy to forget.

It has been the purpose of the Testatrix to embellish still further this favored locality, and the opportunity of which she has availed herself was indeed a rare one. The house, with its gambrel roof and dormer windows, its well-traced outlines, its ancestral memories, its strangely interesting story, stood ready to her hand. Her means were ample. And when a typical New England garden, displayed to public view, with box-borders, and rose-bushes, and hollyhocks, and tulips, and jonquils, open to the street, shall lend its grace of color, form and fragrance to this charming scene, — when the Ezekiel Savage house shall come away at last and uncover from the west the beautiful, vine-draped bell-tower of the North Meeting House, — when the vision shall have been clothed in bodily form and the future shall see this well-conceived design an accomplished fact, then the memory of the old Provincial Magistrate will be indeed secure.

A LETTER FROM THOMAS SPENCER, WHO INTRODUCED THE SALEM GIBRALTAR,
ADDRESSED, ON HIS RETURN TO ENGLAND, TO HIS FRIEND
DR. ABEL LAWRENCE PEIRSON, M.D., OF SALEM.

BRANSBY, NEAR LINCOLN, 10 TWELFTH MO., 1838.

RESPECTED FRIEND:

I do not know that I ever received a letter that gave me more pleasure than thine of the 30th Eighth Mo. I take it as a token of thy kindly feeling towards me. Thy many visits to my family during a course of years made thee, in part, a sharer of my joys and sorrows, and it was meet that such a confidential intercourse should warm into something like reciprocal good feeling. I am delighted with my grapevine cane; it is the very similitude of those used by the gentleman-farmer of Lincolnshire to keep off the half-wild, bellowing bulls of Bashan at the markets and cattle-fairs he is obliged to attend. I am obliged to thee for taking an interest in the boy Spurgeon.

In regard to myself, I am now regularly installed at Bransby, and, could I float off the quaint little hamlet with its queer houses and primitive inhabitants and safe anchor the whole lot in one of the coves round old Salem, I should want nothing of an earthly nature to make me happy. I have at last entered the profession of my early choice. I am a farmer. I feel fully confident that I can make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before; and a little conceit in one's self will not retard the operation. I wish I was near my friend Charles Lawrence sometimes, to compare notes. I love to be among cattle,—to see them feeding and doing well. Last spring I became quite a shepherd, I cherished the lamb and succoured the dam, all of which was wonderfully pretty and vastly poetical, save and except that the sheep were confoundedly lousy. But never mind that. I am determined neither to see nor feel much of the evil or the ugly in rural life. In constant search after the good and the beautiful, I give myself up to the poetry of the thing, and, without romancing, there is much that is pleasant. Did thee ever see the gleaners in the field? Oh! but I have, and have thought of Ruth and Naomi and the barley-fields of Bethlehem, and have run home, with the scene in my eye, to sit down and read all about them, and have wept as I read. Doctor! did thee ever go to a sheep-shearing? I dare say not. But I have though, and have revelled in imaginings of the antiquity of the custom, and thought of the royal shearing of Nabal on Mount Carmel, from whose abundance of good things Abigail could take such a princely present to the fugitive David and the six hundred hungry men that were with him. And then, too, of that shearing to which Absalom invited his brethren, and of the wicked tragedy he acted there.

One day last summer, before the arrival of my family, I was sitting lonely and sad, poring over a goodly book, when I was roused by seeing one of the ancient dames of the village tottle down my garden path bearing in her hand a wicker basket covered with a white napkin — white as snow. “There comes a present,” thought I, “for many’s the offering these white napkins have covered, — sometimes a little cheese, sometimes a little fruit, and perchance a hare. But, on the present occasion, out came a china bowl, full of what I took to be plumb porridge. It was thrumaty, a savory mess made of boiled wheat, milk, currants and various et ceteras. The old lady informed me that she had seen more than fifty shearings since she had been the mistress of a family, and that she had duly marked every one by making a large kettle of thrumaty for the master and his men. She knew, she added, that I had no wife at home, and she feared that I should have no thrumaty. Good old soul! Her feelings were like those of the negro women when they sung of poor Mungo Park,

“He has no mother to bring him milk—
No wife to grind his corn.”

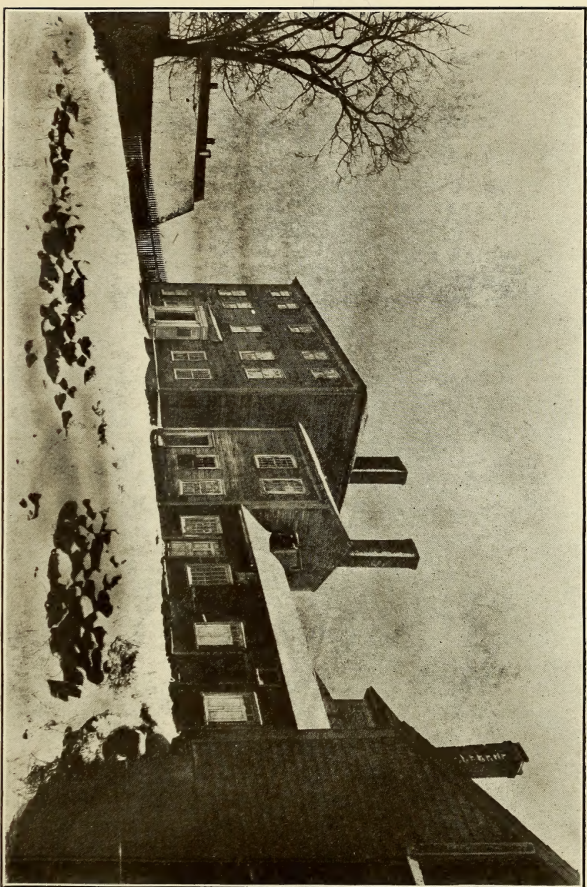

Oh Doctor! thee don’t know how good it was to sip down the savory mess, and sit and talk with such a living chronicle of the past. She told me of the merry times they had about May-day. On a certain fine morning in spring, the milk-maids went into the great pasture with their milking-kits all decorated with ribbands and flowers, and, after many a shout and louder laugh and shake of the foot in rustic dance, they returned into town in procession, bearing their full kits upon their heads, and headed by two fiddlers scraping and screaming such tunes as “Cherry Cheek Patty” and “Green Grow the Rushes O!”

It is a great mercy that I am under the restraining influence of Quakerism, or verily I should make a fool of myself. I have a silly reverence for all the old ways of our merry ancestors, and, were it not that I have been taught better, I certainly should be after reviving in this village of Bransby all the old customs that used once to gladden the hearts of the peasantry. Imagine thy old friend, tambourine in hand, some fine spring morning, footing it down the village street, followed by two fiddlers and a whole flock of frolicksome milk-maids. It is well that my sheet is out, or I might repent of the rig my pen is just now running.

My family are all in tolerable health. Do pray command me if I can be of any service to thee. Believe that I retain a grateful recollection of our long intercourse, and remember me as

Faithfully and truly
thy friend Thomas Spencer

NOTES ON THE REPORT

AS TO THE

AUTHENTICITY OF THE FIRST MEETING HOUSE IN SALEM.

[COMMUNICATED BY WM. P. UPHAM.]

THE following paper presents certain suggestions made by me in correspondence with the President of the Essex Institute, Sept. 29, and Oct. 3, 1903, in regard to the adverse report of the committee appointed March 5, 1900, on the authenticity of the so-called first meeting house. It seemed to me that these suggestions should be considered before accepting as final a decision so contrary to the opinion of a former committee of the Institute, appointed more than forty years ago to pass upon this same question.

The adverse report made by the recent committee, which is printed in the Collections for July, 1903, relates to a claim that the building now preserved in the rear of Plummer Hall contains the frame, or portions of the frame, of the first meeting house in Salem erected in 1634 and enlarged in 1639.

This claim is founded upon a tradition described in the report of a committee of the Essex Institute, in 1860, as given to that committee by Caleb Peirce, the tradition being that the building then standing on the land of David Nichols, back of Boston Street, was "made from the first meeting house." Hist. Coll. Essex Inst., Vol. II, p. 145.

The recent report, by the committee of 1900, in arguing against the tradition relied upon by the former committee of 1860, claims in the first place that "tradition is not history and does not command confidence unless it has been widely disseminated in the community in the past, in some definite form, and runs well back to the events to which it relates."

In answer to this it may be said that tradition often forms a valuable element of historical material and may sometimes be accepted though only preserved in a family or among a few, especially where the tradition relates to houses or to localities.

The argument of the Committee of 1900 that this tradition is not worthy of credence because eminent men, eager for matters of local interest, have not mentioned and perpetuated it, is sufficiently refuted by what appears in the account, quoted by the same Committee, of the "old wooden school house which was formerly the Court House." In giving that account Colonel Benjamin Pickman, to whom we are indebted for so much historical information, makes no mention of what is shown by the Committee to have been a matter of record, namely, that the same "old wooden school house" was constructed partly from the timbers of the first meeting house in Salem, built in 1634. Since this most interesting item of local history was known to all in 1673, and was preserved upon the town record, we may reasonably suppose that some persons knew of it when the "old school house" was pulled down in 1760, and that it would be likely to be known to the purchaser of the old timber, and the memory of it preserved in his family. The tradition thus naturally arising would be credible notwithstanding the rather surprising omission to mention and "perpetuate" it by Colonel Pickman, one of the most eminent and accurate antiquaries of the time in Salem, who says "his curiosity often led" him "to view the place" where the old school house stood.

The tradition given by Caleb Peirce in 1860 seems to comply with the other test applied by the Committee since it "runs well back to the event;" that is, to Enos Pope, 2d, who was thirty-nine years old when the "event" of the supposed removal, in 1760, took place.

The objections made to that which the Committee calls the first "version" of the tradition, namely, the allegation that the first meeting house was removed "in 1639" and that the Nichols building was the "Tomkins Inn," seem to me to be aside from the question really at issue, which, is—the authenticity of the Caleb Peirce tradition, as given in the Report of 1860, to wit,—that the building now in controversy was "made from the first meeting house." The name "Tomkins Inn," and the allegation of the removal in 1639, form no part of the Caleb Peirce tradition or of the Report made in 1860.

These particulars were introduced, probably through inadvertence, in a newspaper account of a "Ramble" in the vicinity of Boston Street, said to have been published "a short time previous to July, 1859." An account which may be supposed to be based upon this story of the Ramble was published in the Salem Observer, July 2, 1859, and was brought to the attention of the Institute at the field meeting at Saugus, July 7, 1859; whereupon a committee was appointed to investigate the matter. In the report made by that committee the name "Tomkins Inn" and the "removal in 1639" do not appear.

In the recent Report the Committee seems inclined to favor the theory that the building in question may have been the first Quaker meeting house, although, according to the first argument of the Committee, the tradition upon which that theory rests should not command confidence not being "in definite form" nor "generally disseminated in the community."

The theory is plausible, and if the tradition as given by Caleb Peirce had said that the David Nichols building was made from the first Quaker meeting house, that would probably have been accepted as its true history.

But the tradition did not so describe it, and the theory does not appear to have been thought of till this present controversy arose. Benjamin Proctor was eighty-four years old in 1860 when he told Mr. Peirce that he had heard his father say "more than a hundred times" that it "was made from the first meeting house." An older brother had said the same to Mr. Peirce "a few years before," and was "much interested in having the house preserved."

Benjamin Proctor knew that the David Nichols building, in which he himself was born, was to be removed for preservation as having been made from the old first meeting house of the First Church, built in 1634.

If his family were Quakers and this was the Quaker Meeting House, it is unaccountable that he should not have known it as such and have so described it; and the same may be said of Caleb Peirce as well as of other Quakers who knew of the proposed preservation.

It is stated in support of this theory that the measurement in one dimension of the first Quaker meeting house did not exceed twenty-four feet and ten inches, thus indicating a small building. In point of fact, however, if my understanding is correct of the agreement with Pickering, in 1639, and of the records mentioned below in treating of the Map of the First Church meeting house lot which accompanies the recent Report, the theory has no advantage in this respect over the theory of the Committee of 1860. As I understand the meaning of those records the meeting house built in 1634 and enlarged in 1639 was probably less than twenty-five feet in width.

The Committee in its adverse report expresses regret that its conclusion does not coincide with that of the first Committee of 1860, from which the present Committee "at this more critical period, with greater perspective" finds itself "compelled to dissent."

I doubt whether this view is just. The inference would be that the Committee of 1860 were led aside from a critical opinion by their zeal and by the enthusiasm occasioned at the then recent discovery of so interesting a treasure.

The unexpected discovery of the marks indicating a gallery, thus confirming what to that committee was an entirely credible tradition, no doubt affected those interested with the enthusiasm natural to the occasion. But my recollection of the earnestness of those engaged in the investigation and the care taken at that time to study the evidence, particularly that afforded by the town records, so extensively quoted in the recent Report, lead me to the belief that this enthusiasm did not prevent a strict attention to the known facts, and an endeavor to pass a critical judgment upon them. It should be borne in mind that the theory that the building, as now preserved in the rear of Plummer Hall, contains portions of the original frame of the first meeting house built in Salem, in 1634, is different from, and independent of, the theory that the frame thus preserved is identical in form and size with the original.

Against the first theory, the only one for which the tradition can be held responsible, no valid objection, as it seems to me, has been brought forward. Against the second theory serious objections are urged, upon which the following suggestions may be of value.

To show that the meeting house of 1634 could not have been so small as 17 by 20 feet, mention is made of other larger meeting houses in less populous places. In contrast, however, with the instances cited, it is significant to note that the meeting house built at Northampton in 1655, and used till 1664, was 26 by 18 feet, or very nearly the supposed size of that built at Salem so long before. The contract for building this meeting house, which is entered upon the Northampton town records, is given in full in Trumbull's History of Northampton, Vol. I, p. 25.

It is a misapprehension of the orders of 1635 and 1646, as to absence from meetings, to hold that they required that all persons without exception should attend every religious service. The orders were evidently directed against those who habitually refused, or neglected without cause, to attend.

But of those who did attend it is not unreasonable to suppose that a portion were obliged at times to take such part as they could in the services outside the building. The committee mentions an estimate of the number of attendants in 1637 as over seven hundred. If this estimate approaches the truth there must have been many that could not be seated in any building likely to have existed at that time in Salem. For many it was sufficient to testify their faith by their presence and by their devotional exercises at or near the sanctuary.

It is said that the rigors of a New England winter would forbid such outside attendance. It is to be remembered, however, that many of the attendants came a long distance on foot or on horseback and were necessarily inured to the weather however severe.

The great barn-like meeting house built in 1718 was used for a hundred years without any provision for heating, and it is difficult for us, accustomed as we are to modern heating conveniences, to understand how the worshippers could have endured the deadly chill which must have pervaded the great spaces of its floors and galleries.

Both these points — that exception must be made as to the number of attendants for those detained by good cause, and that an outside attendance may be supposed — are suggested by the language of the town order of 7th July, 1644 (wrongly referred to by the committee as "no later than 1639"), appointing persons to "take notice of such as lie about the meeting house without attending to the word or ordinances, or that lie at home or in the fields without giving good account thereof."

As to the number apparently called upon to pull the house down and store away the material, in 1673, it may be observed that not all were required to work at it at once and constantly. Town and Church were then one and the same, and the matter was treated, like the old method of working out taxes by labor on the highways, as in the nature of a general assessment to be shared in by all heads of families.

I shall show, I think, further on, that the building could not have been much wider than the frame now preserved indicates; and unless much wider and larger the difference would affect but little the number required to pull it down.

A very material point that bears upon the question of width, though apparently not considered by the Committee, is, that the wording in the agreement with Pickering for the addition, in 1639, "hee is to build a meetinge house of 25 foote longe, the breadth of the old buildinge," naturally leads to the conclusion that the breadth was less than twenty five feet, the word length being usually applied to the greatest measurement.

The Map of the locality and vicinity of the first meeting house of the First Church, which accompanies the Report of the last committee, is incorrect in several particulars.

I. The Hugh Peters lot, conveyed to Benjamin Felton in 1659-60, is placed to the east of the western line of Washington Street, thus controverting the statement made by me in my "Account of the dwelling houses of Francis Higginson, Samuel Skelton, Roger Williams, and Hugh Peters," Essex Inst. Hist. Coll., 1866, Vol. VIII, p. 250, to wit, that the Hugh Peters lot was on the "Southwestern corner of Washington and Essex Streets," and that Washington Street was originally laid out four rods wide from river to river.

The records show that this lot, conveyed to Felton in 1659-60, was the same as that on which the Price building now stands, the Electric Railway Office being at the corner, as appears from the following abstract of title made by me in 1877 :

Registry of Deeds. —

Book 1, Folio 76. 8 Feb., 1659-60. Hugh Peters by Charles Gott, attorney, to Benjamin Felton, "one dwelling house situate in the Town of Salem aforesaid, together with a parcel of ground thereunto adjoining, containing by estimation one quarter of an acre, be it more or less, having the land of M^r Ralph Fogg on the South and West sides thereof and bordering Eastward upon the Street and Northward upon the Lane, being the corner house next to the now dwelling house of m^r Edmond Batter."

B. 6, F. 33. 29 Nov., 1681. Benjamin Felton to Jeremiah Rogers "forty rods or one quarter of an acre, be it more or less, bounded by the country road North and East, by land in possession Mr. John Hathorne South and West." At the end is an agreement by the grantee not to "molest or compell" the grantor "to make good or secure unto him any more land than is at present within fence on the Westerly side of the house, with the land the house stands on ; & with the land fronting before it towards the Meeting house that belongs to it, thats not inclosed."

B. 7. F. 29. 8 Jan. 1682-3. Deposition by Benjamin Felton "that the land which I purchased of Charles Gott & is the corner land of that lane over against m^r Edmond Batters his dwelling house, and which land since I have sold unto Jeremiah Rogers, containing about Seaven or Eight poles, be it more or less, and was that & no more than that which was then at the sale thereof inclosed by a fence between the land of m^r John Hathorne & myself except some small matter next to the Lane or Street : And is all I bought at first or claimed or had any right unto or possession of at all from the purchase of mine unto the sale thereof unto the abovesaid Jeremiah Rogers, notwithstanding the deed of sale of one quarter of an acre, bee it more or less : And did not intentionally sell or conveye any more unto Jeremiah Rogers, notwithstanding his deed but was abused therein. And as for the corner bound next unto m^r John Hathorne his shop being on the South thereof and the street on the East, it is a rowe of stones lying about two or three foot from the said m^r Hathornes Northward corner of his shop which Bounds alwaies agreed upon between the said Hathorne & myself, and is the true Southeast corner Bound of that land I sould unto Jeremiah Rogers as abovesaid." This deposition was sworn to before "William Brown Assistant." The witnesses were Hilliard Veren and John Horne, who were neighbors of Benjamin Felton as appears on my sketch mentioned below.

B. 32, F. 8. 1 May, 1717. Jeremiah Rogers to John Rogers "my Dwelling house Barn and land they stand upon situate lying & being in the town of Salem aforesaid containing about nine poles more or less Bounded, vizt., Northernly & Easternly by the Main Streete, Westernly & Southernly by Colo. Hathornes land."

B. 96, F. 165. March 26, 1750. John Rogers to David Britton dwelling house and land "containing about eight poles." "butting Northerly and Easterly on highways & Southerly & Westerly on land in the occupation of Joseph Hathorne & Samuel Archer."

B. 137 L. 95. 9 July, 1782, David Britton to Henry Rust "about eight poles of land be the same more or less, situate near the town house & bounding Northerly on the Main Street there measuring seventy five feet, Easterly on the Street leading to Marblehead there measuring about thirty feet" etc.

B. 225, F. 213. 1819. Ruth Rust to the same.

B. 226, F. 1. 1821. Ruth Rust to the wife of Joseph Austin.

B. 234, F. 290. 1824. J. P. Rust to Joseph Austin.

B. 246, F. 190. 1827. Page and wife to Austin.

[Probate Records B. 83 F. 2. Will of Henry Rust.]

B. 450, F. 176. 1851. Notice as to privilege of air etc.

B. 603, F. 255. 2 April, 1860. The Massachusetts General Hospital to Ebenr. N. Price. (Mentions devise by will of Mrs. Agnes Austin.)

In 1784 Rust gave a small strip on the north side of his lot to widen "Paved Street" (See Hist. Coll. Vol. VII, p. 157).

For deeds of the lot next south, owned by Ralph Fogg in 1659, see the following:—

B. 5, F. 22. 1676. Ezekiel Fogg to John Ma[r]ston.

B. 5, F. 74. 1671. Henry West to John Ma[r]ston.

B. 11, F. 63. 1685. John Marston to John Hathorne.

B. 111, F. 215. Partition of estate of Joseph Hathorne.

B. 169, F. 131. Deed to David Ropes.

B. 201, F. 260. " " Philip & Abijah Chase.

B. 354, F. 19. Abijah Chase to Philip Chase.

B. 682, F. 39. Deed to Holyoke Mutual Fire Ins. Company.

From these deeds it appears, that the western line of Washington Street to the south as well as to the north of Essex Street has always remained the same from the time when the Hugh Peters lot was conveyed to Benjamin Felton in 1659–60. The prison, from 1663 to 1676 stood in the street to the east of Felton's lot. There appear to have been some small shops allowed to stand for a while near the Cove which ran up towards where Barton Square now enters Washington Street.

II. The Hilliard Veren house, afterwards known as the Henfield house, which stood east of and close to where the tunnel entrance now is, the north side being 65 feet south of where the capstone of the tunnel was in 1873, was not associated with any other name than Hilliard Veren in 1661 or earlier, so far as I have ever been able to ascertain. On the Map in the recent Report it is marked as the "Higginson house." There is no evidence, however, that that was the Higginson house. On the contrary all the evidence points to the belief that the Wm. Lord house, which stood where the south eastern part of the Asiatic building now is, was the Higginson house. How else can all the facts be explained which I have hitherto adduced, as in Essex

Inst. Hist. Coll. Vol. viii, page 250 etc.? Such as the connection of Mrs. Higginson and of Roger Williams with the deed to Lord, and the claim of the town to some interest, finally settled by Lord's releasing to the town all that he had not then fenced in. See also Lord's deed in trust "for the use of the Church of Salem," of his dwelling house, barn, etc., in 1651. Registry of Deeds, Book 1, Folio 11.

We may reasonably suppose that the meeting house was set there as being part of the lot originally laid out to Higginson as a parsonage according to the agreement with the Company in London in 1629. By that agreement, which was for a three years ministry, the house to be built for the minister was to be for his use, and upon his death or removal was "to be for succeeding ministers," but "the increase to be improved of all their grounds during the first three years" was to be at the disposal of the Company. It was further agreed that, in case of death or removal, the widow and children should be provided for. Higginson died before the expiration of the three years, and provision was to be made for Mrs. Higginson and her eight children. The magistrates, it appears, gave "the house" to Mrs. Higginson, but there is no record of any disposal of the land and it does not appear that anything was determined as to use of the land for a meeting house. In fact this remained a question till the agreement with Lord (who had bought the Higginson house) giving up all that was then unfenced by him.

To suppose the Henfield house to have been the Higginson house would utterly conflict with the deposition of Roger Conant (who ought to have known, if anybody) that "the Wm. Lord lot was the outside lot and that it was laid up to the street on the west side which street was laid out four rod broad and bounded the said Wm. Lord his lot on the west side." That part of Washington street which is north of Essex street is just four rods wide to-day and always was so. That the part south of Essex street was originally of the same width is apparent from the following facts:—It has already been shown that the western line of Washington street has always been the same both north and south of Essex street. The eastern line of the land where the Court House stood, sold by the town to Rust and Brown in 1785, was a continuation of that part of the eastern line of Washington street which was north of Essex street; and the same continuation formed the western line of the land conveyed to Rust and Brown by the Proprietors of the meeting house in 1787, all of which is shown on the sketch mentioned below.

III. The indication, on the Map in the Report of the Committee of 1900, of the location of the first meeting house of the First Church, as shown by dark lines enclosing a space called the "first meeting house lot," is not clear in its meaning. The space so designated is marked as 47 feet wide, east and west. It does not, however, represent the whole area of the meeting house land, which, as the records show, extended westerly to what was the original eastern line of Washington Street. Neither does it, in my opinion, truly represent the possible width, east and west, of the first meeting house itself, for that, as the records mentioned below indicate, must have been less than forty feet and was probably, as already stated, less than twenty five feet.

In order to make this more plain I have drawn a sketch of the sites of the successive meeting houses and of the other houses in the vicinity, with the measurements of land, street, etc., as made out from a careful examination of all the records I could find, when studying the matter some thirty years ago.

The present brick meeting house of the First Church in Salem was built in 1827, and had porches on the western and eastern sides, leaving open spaces at the four corners. These open spaces were filled out when the alterations were made in 1875.

The northwestern corner of this present building on Essex Street, thus built out, is at the same point as was the northwestern corner of the body of the wooden meeting house which preceded it, built in 1718. This is shown by measurements at different times, given in the records. (See Registry of Deeds B. 144, F. 259, B. 147, Fol. 17, and the Church records Aug. 23, 1787.) The first measurement in 1785 was 34 feet 4 inches from the eastern side of the old Court House or Town House, from which comes the name "Town House Square," to the western side of the body of the house built in 1718. When the Court House was removed, in 1785, the land it had covered, 30 by 50 feet, was sold by the Town to Henry Rust and Benjamin Brown. (See Reg^y Deeds B. 144, F. 259.) By a deed of release, in 1787 (recorded B. 147, F. 17), the Proprietors of the Meeting house gave liberty to Rust and Brown to build their store at 31 ft. 4 in. distance from the northwest and outhwest corners of the Meeting house, the Proprietors releasing a strip 3 feet in width, shown by a dotted line in my sketch, from the west side of their land, which, as I have said, extended westerly to the original eastern line of Washington Street.

Rust and Brown at the same time gave up 9 feet in width on the west side of their 30 foot lot, bought of the Town, to widen the street on that side, thus making their lot finally 24 feet wide. Their store was of that width and so continued till 1839, when, as appears from the City Records, July 8, 1839, this Rust and Brown 24 ft. lot, with the passage way east of it up to the western line of the present meeting house, measured in 1787 as 31 ft. 4 in. wide, was laid out as a street, — the distance across being then, in 1839, stated to be 55 ft. 5 in., or only one inch different from the measurement of 1787.

From this it appears certain that the western line of the body of the meeting house of 1718–1827 coincided with the western line of the present building.

The house of 1670–1718 was 60 feet on Essex Street by 50 feet in depth. That of 1718–1827 was 70 feet on Essex Street and of the same depth, 50 feet, as the one that preceded it, and was to be built "on and nigh the same place," or, as expressed in the heading of the subscription list for building it, "on and adjoining to the same place where the old meeting house now stands."

As the new building of 1718 (which had porches on the eastern and western sides) was to have the same depth from Essex Street (50 feet) and was to be "on and adjoining to the same place," we may reasonably conclude that the north and south foundation walls were retained and one or the other of the east and west foundations. The meeting house built in 1670 could not therefore have extended further west on Essex Street than the body of that built in 1718, or, as shown above, further west than the present building extends.

The house of 1670 was built at "the west end of the old meeting house towards the prison" and was used for some time while the old meeting house was still standing. It had "three great doors" one at the east end, one at the west end, and one on the north front. (See Town Records Jan. 13, 1672, Apr. 20, 1676, and March 1, 1678-9.)

There must therefore have been a passage way on the west side of the old first meeting house, between it and the new building.

Where the northwestern corner of the Hale Building now is was a lot about 14 or 15 feet square on which stood a shop, in 1647, as indicated in my sketch. This shop was mentioned as the "shop of Benjamin Felton" in a deed by Richard Stileman in 1647 (Registry, Book 1, Leaf 3), and was afterwards owned by George Corwin, who sold the lot to Wm. Sweetland in 1681 (Registry, B. 7, L. 10). South of this was the lot, about 17 by 15 feet, sold by the Town to John Corwin, 7 Oct. 1669, and next south came the house and shop of Edward Wharton, in 1660, and next south was the warehouse of George Corwin.

As John Corwin would otherwise have had no access to his lot, we must suppose that there was a passage way from the street on the east side of the first meeting house as it stood in 1669, and between that building and his lot. It thus appears that there must have been open passage ways on both the eastern and western sides of the old first meeting house. From all these circumstances taken together we are enabled to say quite confidently that the ground which the original meeting house covered must have been considerably less than forty feet in width. The length of the present meeting house east and west is very nearly 82 feet and 5 inches, and the width of the present passage way between it and the Hale Building averages about 17 feet, in all slightly less than 100 feet. Deducting from this the 60 feet extent east and west of the house built in 1670 leaves less than 40 feet.

Deducting again from this possible width of the ground the supposed width of the first meeting house, 17 feet, there would be left not more than 23 feet for the combined width of the two passage ways thus shown to have existed, one on the west side and one on the east side of the original building.

As to the width of each of these passage ways we have no positive knowledge but are left to inference from the circumstances of the time and the subsequent history of the rights of adjoining owners.

That the way on the east side of the first meeting house was wide enough for a cart way, is probable from the necessity for access to the land sold to John Corwin in 1669. By an agreement made Dec. 15, 1825, between the Parish Committee and John Derby, the owner of the land where the Hale Building now stands, the passage way was to be and continue open and of the width of sixteen feet. Though this agreement has been thought to be invalid as not being duly authorized by the Society, the fact that such an agreement was entered into is some evidence that the adjoining owner claimed an interest in a way of that width. In fact Mr. Derby, in a letter to the Society, in 1827, recorded in the Registry of Deeds B. 493 L. 230, stated that he claimed nothing "of rights of land on said way other than what has been enjoyed by this estate of mine for seventy years past, and the privileges contained in the agreement made with your committee on the 15th of December 1825."

In conclusion I think it may be said that there is evidence, worthy of belief, that the building now preserved contains portions of the frame of the first meeting house, and further, that it is not wholly improbable that it presents very nearly if not exactly the dimensions of the original structure.

HEAD Q^{RS} MIDDLE BROOK 23^D JUNE '77.

DEAR BROTHER,

So important an event as General Howe's army abandoning the Jersey's will doubtless excite a general curiosity to know the principal circumstances respecting it. I believe it was the week before last that several thousands of the enemy advanced from Brunswick to Millstone, about nine miles, & threw up sundry redoubts, two or three of them about Howe's quarters at Middle Bush, between Brunswick & Millstone. After remaining in this situation five or six days, living in booths, they suddenly withdrew to Brunswick, with divers marks of precipitation.

General Washington, having rec^d information that the enemy were preparing to leave the Jerseys, did the day before yesterday order several corps of the army to march down, & harass them in their retreat. But the enemy went off from Brunswick so early yesterday morning, that a part only of the detachments arrived in season to attack them; and the rear guard of the enemy, consisting of their best troops & being judged 2000 strong, such of our troops as arrived in season were too few in number to make an open & direct attack. However, Col^o Morgan with his reg^t of riflemen (a corps selected from the army) engaged them with great bravery; & the Col^o thinks that full a hundred of the enemy were killed; for he says his men frequently got shots at them within small distances, from 30 feet to 30 yards. Two riflemen were killed & eight wounded, which is all the loss we have heard of on our part. Their departure from Brunswick was apparently hastened by the approach of our first troops; for the soldiers left [woolen overalls, camp kettles,—words erased] many things in their camp and a new bridge over the Rariton built by the enemy was left standing. 'Tis supposed the enemy have all retired to Amboy, & that they will as soon as possible totally quit the Jerseys. The night before the enemy departed from Brunswick they burnt divers buildings in the neighbourhood; and some of their [five,—word erased] divisions who retired first, set fire to a great number of houses on their way to Amboy, to wit, at Piscataway, Bonum Town & Woodbridge. I should be more particular but the gentleman who carries this is in haste to depart.

I am yours affectionately

TIM. PICKERING JUNR.

P. S. I inclose a letter to my wife which you will send her as soon as you can. The main body of our army is in camp between the mountains northward of Bound Brook. Gen^l Sullivan's division at Brunswick, Lord Stirling's at or near Metuchin, between Brunswick & Amboy, and it is not unlikely the main body of our army may move that way.

He purchased of Walter Price Bartlett Oct. 29, 1801, for $4,000, a lot of land on the south side of Essex Street, a short distance east of Liberty Street.* This lot measured 35 1-2 feet on Essex Street, and was 153 feet, 7 in. deep. In the rear it extended westward to Liberty Street, measuring 83 feet upon that street. The small lot on the corner of Essex and Liberty Streets, was owned by Edward S. Lang. Jonathan Neal obtained judgment against Richard Gardner, and was granted the southern end of this lot Jan. 23, 1813.† The northern end, fronting on Essex Street, was granted to the Essex Fire and Marine Insurance Company, in a similar way, Dec. 21, 1812.‡ The lot next south of the one above mentioned, measuring 41 feet, 6 inches on Liberty Street, was purchased by him, September 16, 1803.§ He sold it June 6, 1812, to Joseph Chapman Ward, for $1500.||

He bought of widow Elizabeth Smith, in June, 1804, a lot of land on the western side of Pleasant Street,§ and sold the same May 31, 1809, to John Rhodes.¶ In 1809, he leased flats on the eastern side of Derby wharf, and June 8, 1812, with the consent of John Derby, President of the Derby Wharf Corporation, sold one half of the store on Derby wharf to Jonathan Neal.

Richard Gardner and others, leased to John Mason in 1804, "the Bathing house with well & pump & Bathing

REAL ESTATE.

The first transaction, bearing his name, was dated Feb. 6, 1786, at which time he sold about 5 3-4 acres of upland, in Danvers, to Ebenezer Marsh, for £51, 14 shillings.* He inherited from his father one half of his real and personal estate.† His brother John purchased all of his right to their father's estate, May 15, 1800, for $500, and on the same date gave James a mortgage deed of three lots of land in Danvers for $300 loaned to him.‡ These were discharged August 20, 1822, by Margaret, widow of James.‡

James and his wife Margaret, with the other heirs of Francis Skerry, sold lots in different parts of Salem in 1792-5, including one sale on May 25, 1792, of 3 1-4 acres of land on Ferry Lane (now Bridge Street), to Jonathan Gardner (No. 161).§ He bought of the heirs of Francis Skerry, Jan. 20, 1795, the "easterly lower room of the Mansion house of the late Francis Skerry, with the pantree and garret over said room."|| In 1823 (Nov. 5), Margaret Gardner, daughter of James, purchased of John and Henry Skerry and others, all of their interests in this mansion house, which was located in the "north fields."¶

He married March 4, 1789, Margaret Skerry, daughter of Francis Skerry. She died about 1825, and her daughter Margaret Gardner was appointed administratrix.†† Her estate was appraised Jan. 4, 1826. It consisted of one eighth of an acre of land "in the North fields," with part of a house and barn on the same, and her household effects.‡‡

He married at Danvers, Feb. 14, 1797,‡‡ Mehitable Goodale, daughter of Jacob and Hannah (Upton) Goodale. After his death his widow married, April 5, 1829, Samuel Taylor.‡‡ She died May 14, 1846, falling upon the steps of the old Gardner farmhouse, in which she had continued to live up to that time.

John Gardner died April 12, 1823.‡‡ In his will dated April 8, 1823, he made the following bequests:— To his wife he gave his homestead field and meadow, containing about thirty acres, with the buildings thereon, also all of his land on the north side of the road, known as the "new field." He also left her all of his right in the "Buffington field." One half of the "old orchard and bogg meadow," amounting to twelve acres, he left to Hannah, Benjamin G. and William Proctor, children of Benjamin G. Proctor. The other half of the last named lots, he gave to John Gardner Walcott, son of Ebenezer Walcott. All of his household effects he left to his wife Mehitable.§§ The will was probated in May, 1823.

THE AVERY FAMILY OF GREENLAND, N. H.

BY WILLIAM H. MANNING OF AYER, MASS.

NOTE.—As far as connections have been made with certainty by the present writer, the genealogy of this family begins with Robert Avery, below, but the facts relating to those whose names precede his in this article seem so clearly to indicate relationship, and this probability has been so generally accepted, that they are placed as here found.

1. Thomas Avery was a landholder in 1657 at Portsmouth, N. H.* He was taxed for the support of the church there in the following years.† In the early Rockingham County records the surname is sometimes spelled Every, or Evory, and one of these variations appears in the settlement of his estate.‡ "Thomas Every's" inventory "taken sometime in September, 1681." Seventeen and one-half acres of land are mentioned, but the transfer of this land has not been found. "Joan Every was sworn to the truth of this Inventory before the Council 1 Nov., 1681." The inference is that she was his wife. No heirs are mentioned in accessible papers.

2. Thomas Avery, the second of the name, was in Portsmouth in 1688, "probably in the Greenland part."§ In 1693, he had a seat in the meeting-house. Apr. 10, 1694, he mortgaged land to John Partridge, * Brewster's Portsmouth, page 28.

‡ It is thought by some genealogists that he may have been the same Thomas Avery who came in the ship John and Mary and was freeman in 1643; and who was probably the Thomas who was of Salem, Mass., 1655-8, when he had wife Susanna (Essex Antiquarian, VI, 88). If the two were one, the removal to New Hampshire was a natural step.

senior, of the same town. I find not if this was ever discharged, nor do I find how he acquired the land. Theoretically, it would seem that he was a son of the first Thomas, and had inherited the latter's farm. In 1703 the part of Portsmouth in which he lived was set off and incorporated as the town of Greenland. He sold "ten or twelve" acres of land, Mar. 17, 1710, to Walter Philbrook. The deed is signed by Thomas Every and Abigail Every (supposed to have been his wife), both of whom made their marks, and the witnesses were John Avery and Robert Avery. The appearance of these names leads to the theory that they were sons of Thomas. Of the latter, no more is found.

3. John Avery was of Greenland as early as the signing of the above deed, and his connection therewith, and his presence in Greenland, suggest relationship to the second Thomas; while the date when his own son was baptized indicates that he was a younger man. His wife Elizabeth was admitted to the Greenland church in 1712. Before Sept. 23, 1723, he removed to Stratham, and on that date bought land there of John Pett and wife Abigail. John Avery died before Dec. 24, 1731, when Elizabeth, his widow, and their son sold land. Elizabeth may safely be written down as a daughter of John Hill, for Rockingham County deed xvi-216 is one whereby Mr. Avery, with his wife, sells land "which was granted by the town of Dover to my father, John Hill." Only one child of John and Elizabeth has been found, as follows:

JOHN, bap. 1712, at Greenland; resided in Stratham. The compiler of the genealogy of the Avery Family of Groton, Conn., erroneously included this John in his work, calling him a son of Samuel and Susanna (Palmer) Avery. John's purchases and sales of land were numerous. Of these, one sale was Apr. 8, 1745, with his wife Bridget, to William Huggins, of Greenland, "all our right and title to all the land and marsh that said William Huggins hath in possession that was his grandfather's, Nathaniel Huggins, senior, late deceased." This seems to have been Bridget's maiden name. The Avery book, before mentioned, gives the form, Higgins, which probably agrees with modern spelling, but the name had long been spelled Huggins. Their numerous children appear in the Avery book.

4. Robert Avery lived for many years in Greenland. Proceeding by inference, one would say he was grandson of the first Thomas, son of the second Thomas, and brother of John (3), but this cannot be asserted; hence, the previous facts are given for what they are worth, and the sketch for which reliability can be asserted begins at this point. Robert was witness to the deed before mentioned, in 1710, and his parish rate is given in subsequent years.* His wife Mary was admitted to the church in 1728. The writer does not know her maiden name, nor whether she was the mother of Robert's children. He had land in Greenland which he divided by means of successive deeds, in 1726 and 1728, between his sons Robert and Edward.† In this division his relationship to the grantees is plainly stated, and the conveyances were by gift. In the deed to Robert, junior, it was stipulated that the son was not to dispose of his share during the lifetime of the father, but this condition was apparently waived subsequently, for it was sold in 1729, and the elder Robert was then living. The father sold, June 27, 1729, to his son Edward, his rights in the township of Epsom, of which place he had been one of the grantees a few years before, and he personally appeared March 22, 1734, at Scarborough, Maine, to acknowledge the deed. This is the last sign found of him, though no search has been made at the last-named place.

Children :

5. EDWARD.
6. ROBERT.
7. BENJAMIN; of whom no more is known than that, when Edward received his land by the above-mentioned deed, he was to pay "his brother Benjamin" £10.
8. ? JEANE.
9. ? ABIGAIL. In 1728 Jeane Avery and Abigail Avery owned the covenant at Greenland. They were probably daughters of the Robert of this section, or of John (3). Their rightful place cannot here be assigned to them with safety.

5. Edward Avery, son of Robert (4), had half of his father's farm in Greenland, was living there in 1729, when

* See New England Hist.-Gen. Register, XXII-451, and XXVIII - 253, 416, '22, '23.

† Rockingham County Deeds, Vol. XVI, pages 189 and 201.

he sold a small lot of land, and had a son baptized there in 1730. No more is found of him, nor is it known what became of the remainder of his farm. He married Sarah ——. Their known children were :

10. SUSANNA, baptized in 1729.

11. DANIEL, baptized in 1730.

6. Robert Avery, son of Robert (4), resided in Greenland until he sold his farm, June 4, 1729, about which time he removed to Townsend, Mass., and purchased land of John Patt [Pett, or Petts], Dec. 13 of the same year. He married Sarah——. She united with the church in Greenland in 1728, and joined the Townsend church by letter after the removal, her previous residence being clearly given in the record. It is probable that she was a daughter of the John Petts whose name has been twice mentioned in this article. Mr. Petts is reputed to have been the earliest settler on the tract of land which was established in 1732 as Townsend. His sale of land in Stratham, N. H., already mentioned, suggests that his previous home had been in the latter town, but the clerk of Stratham fails to find the name there. He died in, or before, 1757, when his estate was appraised by Samuel Manning and two other men. His children, named in the settlement of the estate, were as follows: John, jr., "eldest son," born about 1713, according to his gravestone; Jonathan, born Oct. 15, 1727, at Townsend; David, deceased, who had left heirs; Sarah, who had married —— Avery; Abigail and Anna. The age of John Petts, senior, and the order of birth of his children are unknown to the writer; while the little in the way of birth-dates which is at hand leaves room for more speculation than certainty. The daughter Sarah certainly married an Avery, but whether it was Robert or his son David (which see) is, perhaps, a question. If she was the youngest of her father's children her husband was David, but the evidence is almost conclusive that she was one of the eldest and married Robert. Robert followed John Petts to Townsend; he bought a farm there of him; and, without exception, the names of John Petts' children are repeated in the children of Robert and Sarah Avery.

Moreover, she seems to have been a widow in 1757, which harmonizes with the known facts. Robert Avery died in Townsend, Sept. 26, 1756. Sarah was administratrix. She was doubtless the "widow Sarah Avery" who went to Westford in 1766, but perhaps did not remain; after which no more is found of her. The birth of all their children is on record at Townsend, without any statement as to where they were born, but the facts here given settle this point conclusively.

Children :

12. SARAH, b. Oct. 5, 1726, in Greenland; bap. there in 1727; m. Apr. 14, 1747, James Byam, of Groton.
13. JONATHAN, b. Jan. 14, 1728-9, in Greenland; bap. there in the same year.
14. ABIGAIL, b. July 14, 1731, in Townsend; m. Samuel Manning (number 175 in the Manning genealogy).
15. ROBERT, b. Aug. 24, 1733, in Townsend; d. there Jan. 20, 1757, evidently unm.
16. MARY, b. June 24, 1735, in Townsend; m. May 30, 1757, Samuel Lawrence, "of No. 1."
17. DAVID, b. Aug. 4, 1737, in Townsend.
18. ELIZABETH, b. Dec. 1, 1739, in Townsend; m. in 1760 (intention June 14), Isaac Patch, jr., and had children whose birth-dates are given in an abbreviated form in the history of Westford, viz: I. John Avery, b. in 1761, in Pepperell, II. Isaac, b. ———; removed to Cavendish, Vt. III. Asa, b. in 1764, in Groton. IV. Elizabeth, b. in 1766. V. Abel, b. in 1769, in Groton.
19. ANNA, b. Apr. 23, 1742, in Townsend; m. in Lancaster, Jan. 21, 1761, Joshua Johnson, jr. In the marriage record she is called "Hannah Avery, of Groton." The following children are found on record at Lancaster: I. Robert Avery, bap. May 22, 1768. II. Anna, bap. Mar. 31, 1771. III. Timothy, bap. March 21, 1773. IV. Rachel, bap. Aug. 6, 1775. V. Joshua, bap. June 1, 1777.
20. JOHN, b. Feb. 10, 1743-4, in Townsend; d. Oct. 14, 1760.
21. RACHEL, b. July 15, 1746, in Townsend; m. Dec. 8, 1763, Ebenezer Albee, of that town.
22. LUCY, b. July 11, 1749, in Townsend; m. in Lancaster, May —, 1767, "John 2 Willard," which I suppose means, John Willard, 2d. She is called "Lucebe" Avery in the marriage record. Middlesex County deed of July 14, 1778, Book 80, page 365, is one whereby Jonathan Avery, of Temple, N.H., Samuel Manning, of Townsend, Mass., Isaac Patch, of Westford and John Willard, of Lancaster, buy land in Townsend of Samuel Lawrence. This shows five branches of Robert Avery's descendants acting together. Children of John and Lucy, found at Lancaster: I. John, b. Dec. 17, 1768. II. Lucy, b. May 22, 1770. III. Mary, b. June 13, 1772. IV. John, b. Apr. 12, 1774. V. Cyrus, b. Feb. 22, 1778.

13. Jonathan Avery, son of Robert (6), born in Greenland, Jan. 14, 1728-9, was reared in Townsend, and was living there in 1750 when his father, "in consideration of the love I do bear my son Jonathan," conveyed land to him; was "of Pepperell" in 1757 when he was administrator of the estate of his deceased brother Robert; still of Pepperell, Dec. 14, 1764 (Rockingham County, N. H., deed 99-166); removed to Temple, N. H., before Aug. 19, 1765 (Middlesex County, Mass., deed 72-227), and was living in Temple as late as 1789. These facts not only trace his movements, but some are of special importance in view of the fact that one publication mistakenly assigns Jonathan to another family. That he was a son of Robert (6) is beyond question. He married at Townsend, Jan. 9, 1752, Mary, daughter of Isaac and Sarah (Page) Farnsworth, born June 6, 1735, in Lunenburg. The history of Townsend, in giving this marriage, says "John" Avery. Dr. Green corrects the error in his Groton Historical Series, but the compiler of the Farnsworth genealogy evidently missed the correction, and, following the error, also says "John."

Children :

23. JONATHAN, b. Jan. 2, 1753; a Revolutionary soldier, and died in service.
24. TIMOTHY, b. Sept. 29, 1754; a Revolutionary soldier for Massachusetts, under Capt. Ezra Town; birthplace given as Townsend; age, 21 years; enlisted May 15, 1775; died Aug. 7, 1775.
25. SAMUEL, b. Oct. 18, 1758.
26. JOHN, b. Nov. 8, 1760.
27. MARY, b. Aug. 6, 1768.

17. David Avery, son of Robert (6), born Aug. 4, 1737, in Townsend, perhaps resided there until 1760, when he went to Pepperell, accompanied by his wife Sarah and the two children named below. The maiden name of Sarah is unknown. See sketch of Robert (6). No more has been found of her and David. Their known children were :

28. SARAH, b. before 1760.

29. DAVID, b. before 1760; probably the Revolutionary soldier of the name, of Pepperell, under Capt. John Nutting, who marched on the Lexington alarm, Apr. 19, 1775; probably the David Avrey (sic), of New Ipswich, N. H., who enlisted May 4, 1775, and served under Capt. Ezra Town and Col. James Read. This David was aged 18, and born in Townsend.

NOTE.— One David Avery, of Ludlow, Vt., advertised in the Vermont Journal of Sept. 8, 1797, that his son Gardiner had "left his service" and was "inclined to run him [me] in debt," in consequence of which all persons were forbidden to trust the son; and the Vermont Republican of Oct. 8, 1810, shows that David Avery, of Ludlow, had died and left an estate represented as insolvent. These items may be worthy of preservation, and if this David, of Ludlow, was the same person as number 29 in the foregoing sketch, he had removed to a town where his relatives of other surnames were very numerous in the surrounding towns. The connection, however, is not asserted.

A REVOLUTIONARY LETTER WRITTEN BY
COL. TIMOTHY PICKERING.

[NEAR PHILADELPHIA.] OCT. 30, 1777.

DEAR BROTHER,—I have only a moments time to tell you that I am well,—that on the 22^d instant P. M. the Hessian Grenadiers attacked the fort at red bank & were repulsed with the loss of about 400 killed & wounded, among the latter Count Donop who commanded them & his brigade Major, both probably mortally. Our loss only 32 killed & wounded. The next day in the morning the ships came up, and a severe cannonade continued all the forenoon. The affair ended in the Augusta of 64 guns getting aground, and taking fire by accident, by which she was wholly* burnt to the water's edge. Our people have since got some of her guns, (24 pounders) out of her two of which are carried to the fort at red bank. Another the Apollo frigate of 32 guns ran aground, & the galleys beset her so warmly that her crew quitted her after setting her on fire. The burning of these two ships may balance our burning ours at the N. River by Fort Montgomery. The enemy have not yet made any progress in gaining the passes of the Delaware river. I described their situation in a letter to my wife some time since.—Yesterday a deserter (servant of Gen^l. Gray) came in & informed that orders had been given a day or two ago for Howe's army to pack up all their baggage, and his masters was packed up accordingly. This must be either to retire on board his ships & depart or to march to attack us, or to be ready to move off in case of being attacked, the latter he has little reason to fear, as he has retired to the environs of the city & is secured by redoubts, what his real intentions are is difficult to determine. 'Tis generally imagined he will make one more vigorous effort to gain one or both the forts, & if unsuccessful, that he will then decamp.

This day one of Gen^l. Washington's aids goes off to Gen^l. Gates, to get him to send to us about 20 of the reg^{ts}. raised in New-England. We need reinforcements. Howe's army is larger than has been supposed. We have had rain ever since Sunday, part of the time severe. Our soldiers suffered much by it. The enemy also must have suffered greatly, and all their works at the low marshy ground on province island must be greatly damaged, probably too the dikes are broke & the island [flooded]. This at least must for some time delay their works.

Commend me to my friends. My love to my wife.

Farewell

SALEM, MASS.
PRINTED FOR THE ESSEX INSTITUTE
1904

THE historical or genealogical student, searching for data in the cities and towns of eastern Massachusetts, cannot consider his task completed until he has consulted the volumes of Historical Collections issued by the Essex Institute.

Valuable historical investigations from original sources are here brought to the attention of the scholar and a long list of public records and vital statistics have been printed in the pages of the Collections.

These Collections are published quarterly, each volume containing over 400 pages and an exhaustive index. The fortieth volume, beginning with the issue of January, 1904, will contain a large amount of original matter, such as, Beverly First Parish Church Records; Gardner Genealogy; Salem Custom House Registers, 1850-1900; English Records Relating to Early New England Families; Salem Town Records, Volume II; Abstracts of Essex County Wills Probated in Suffolk County; Pepperell Genealogy, and much other historical and miscellaneous matter.

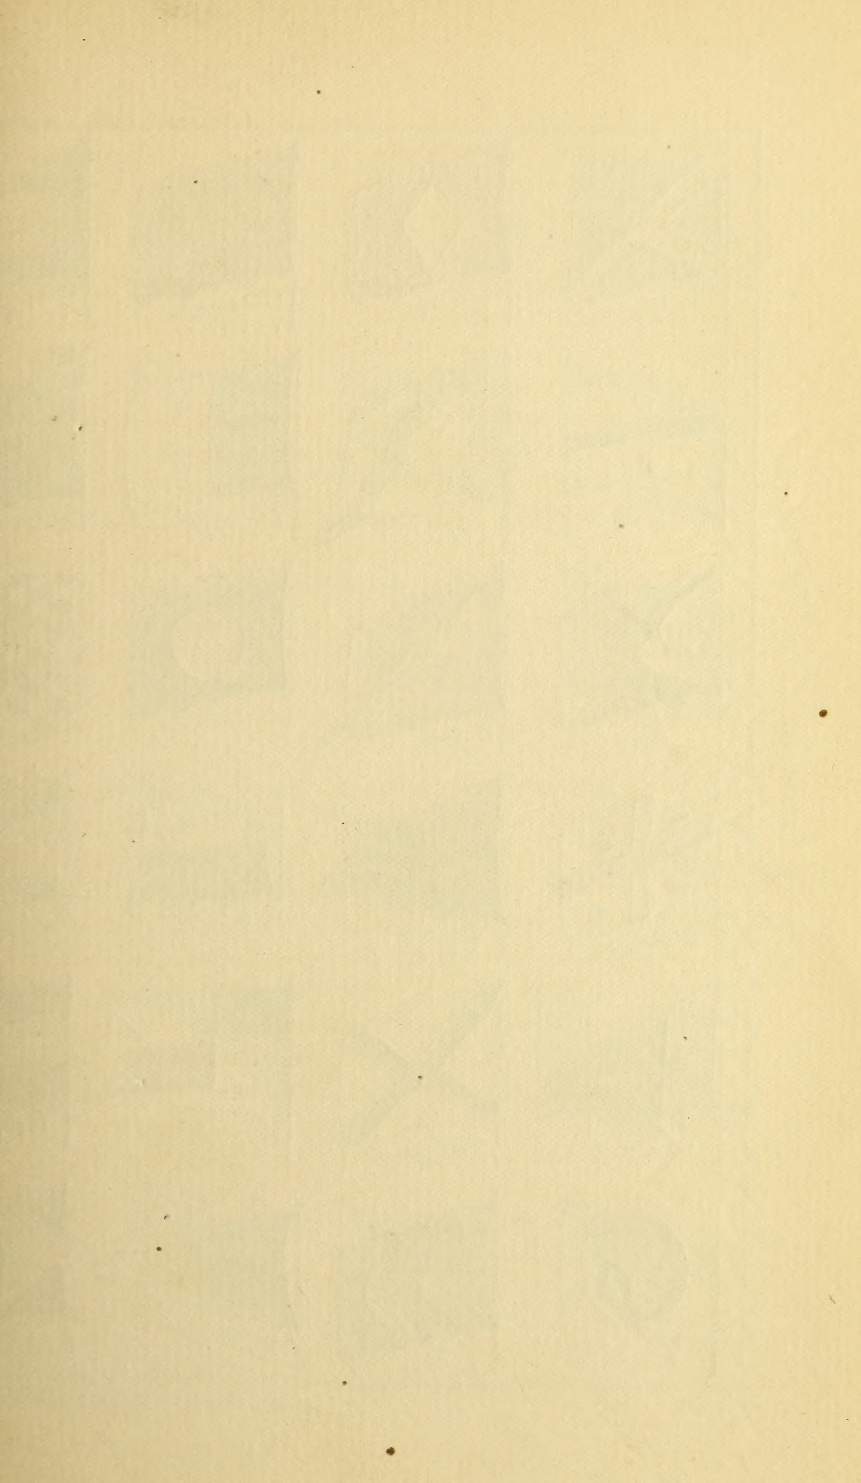

Among the genealogies to be found in the volumes already issued are the following: Allen, Bray, Chipman, Clark, Clarke, Conkling, Corwin, Esty, Fabens, Gedney, Gould, Graves, Hawkes, Hutchinson, Houlton-Holton, King, Lyford, Newhall, Perkins, Pillsbury, Plummer, Prince, Rantoul, Richardson, Russell, Silsbee, Sparhawk, Townsend, Webb and Woodbury. Also records and vital statistics from Beverly, Boxford, Danvers, Hamilton, Ipswich, Lynn, Lynnfield, Marblehead, Peabody, Salem, Saugus, Topsfield and Wenham. Abstracts of wills, deeds and journals frequently appear; biographical sketches and memoirs; tombstone inscriptions, etc., etc.

Subscription $2.00 per annum.

ROWLAND PRATCHETT of East Smythfeild, parish of St. Buttwells, London, Complaint of. That whereas one Ralphe Prachett late of Fleetweeke, county Bedford, deceased about twenty years since, was seised in demesne as of fee of Seaven acres of meadowe in East Mead in parish of Fleetweeke aforesaid and of Five acres of land and pasture in Flitton said County and soe being seised died, one Richard Pratchett beinge his sonne and heire, to whom said premisses descended and so being seised said Richard Pratchett about nine years since died, and said premisses descended to your orator as sonne and heire of said Richard, And whereas one William Pratchett Late of Fleetweeke deceased was in his lifetime seised as of fee of a messuage wherein the said William Pratchett dwelt att the Tyme of his decease and of the Barnes, Stables, Orchardes, gardens, &c., thereunto belonging and of a meadowe called Hide Meade and of divers other Lands in parish of Fleetweeke and in or about Marche Last Paste did make his Laste Will and by said Will did devise said house, Barnes, &c., to Allen Breade an infant of the age of Fourteene yeares sonne of John Bread of Westoning in said county Bedford, and did ordeine that said Allen Bread should not have the premisses till he came to age of four and twenty years, and having made his will died soe seised, your orator being his cousin and next heir. By and after whose decease your orator ought to have profitts of said messuage, &c., devised to said Allen Bread untill he should accomplish the age of Fower and Twentye yeares, And after the decease of the said Allen Bread the reuercion of said messuage and premisses soe devised to your orator and his heires forever. And allso the said other Landes, &c., of said William Prachett descende to your orator as cosen and next heire to the saide William Prachett. Butt soe itt is Maye itt please your good honnor your said orator being a poore man and dwellinge att the deceases of the said Ralphe Pratchett, Richard Pratchett, and William Pratchett, att the Cittye of London Fortye Miles distant from the place of their dwellinge, the said John Bread havinge by sinister meanes gotten into his possession all the deeds, wills, &c., touching the said premisses under color thereof hath entered into the premisses and deteineth the same from your orator and doth take the profitts thereof contrarie to Equitye and to your orators great damage and vtter ondoeing of your orator his poore wife and children and doth give itt out that hee will deliver said deeds, &c., to those of whom the premisses were purchased, and will conceale them or deface them that your orator shall not knowe howe to make anie title, &c.

Chancery Proceedings, James I., B & A., P. 24/26.

JOHN BREAD. Answer of. 20 November 1614. That he doeth not know or beleve that Richard Pratchett, father of the Complt., was ever seised of anie the landes, &c., in the Bill of Complaint menconed or that anie of said landes, tenements, &c., did or ought to descende from said Richard Pratchett unto Complt., but this deft sayth that one Willm Prachett vnkle of Complt., was in his life tyme lawfully seysed of messuage, landes, &c., in bill menconed and amongst other thinges he being further indebted vnto others then his p'sonal estate would p'tend vnto to satisfie and discharge haveing a determinacon to advance this deft. his wife and children and this deft. haveinge marryed the sister of the said William Pratchett and being willinge to paye his debtes in some convenient tyme and being desiorous to settle his estate before hee dep'ted being of good and perfecte memorie desyered to have his will made and for that purpose sent unto one Rowland Roworth then of Westoninge, county Bedd., clarke, and intreated him to sett downe his last will and testament in wrightinge and gave him Direcon that his will was to bequeath unto this deft. and his heires all that messuage of him said William Prachett scituate in Flitton and all his landes, &c., in Flitton and Pulloxhill said county Bedford to the intente that this deft. should allien and sell the same and that the money that should thereof bee made, shold bee equallie devyded amongst the Children of this deft. for the better raysinge of their porcons for their maintenance. And that hee said William Pratchett by his last will and Testament would gyve and bequeath vnto Allen Bread his godchild one of this deft's sonnes and vnto heires of said Allen Bread all that house wherein said William Pratchett did then dwell and inh'ite in Flytwicke with all barns, &c., orchards, &c., meadowes, &c., tenements, &c., and that meadow called the hid meadow and all his interest and lease in certain landes held by lease from His Majestie and all landes which he had then latelie purchased of one Richard Button. And for better payment of his debtes his minde was that this deft. should receive p'fittes of said messuage, &c., by him given unto said Allen Bread and his heires untill said Allen should attayne and be of full age of 24 yeares and likewise made itt known that this deft. should be his sole executor to whom he bequeathed all the residue of landes, goods, &c., and thereupon said Rowland Roworth did take upon him to sett down said last will of William Pratchett and did write it which beareth date 16 March last w'ch said will after the wrightinge thereof was delivered and published by said William Pratchett in presence of many and credible witnesses and by said will did give, &c., &c., and did giue to divers p'sons diverse Legacies, amongst others did give one

Legacie of 3s. 4d. to now Complt. &c., and did expresslie Declare his will to be that the Complt. should not have anie parte of his estate other than the legacie of 3s. 4d. And if anie defecte therein bee it is onelie defalte of the writer. And thereupon by virtue of the said last will said deft. did enter into and upon the messuage, meadowes, and premisses bequeathed to Allen Breade and the same doth occupie and enioye according to said last will and upon other landes, tenements, &c., without that that the said seven acres in the East mead or the five acres and a half of supposed to lye in Flitton by and after decease of said Raphe Pratchett descended to Richard Pratchett in said Bill of Complt named as sonne and heir to said Raphe Prachett or that to this deft's knowledge said Richard Pratchett did enter into said meadow and was so seised and died as in said bill is sett forth or that the said premisses by and after the death of said Richard descended to Complt. And without that the said Complt ought to have p'fitts of anie p'misses bequeathed to Allen Bread untill said Allen Bread shall accomplish age of 24 and after his decease the Reuercon of same to Complt and heires forever. And this deft. confesseth that he hath in his hands some few deeds touching said lands in Flitweeke, Flitton, and Pulloxhill which concerne the title of said landes bequeathed to said Allen Bread and sayeth that he hath noe writinges concerninge p'misses other than such as concern the title of this deft. and his said sonne Allen.

Chancery Proceedings, James I., P. 24/62.

182 Joseph Gardner, the elder son of Abel and Abigail (Chapman) Gardner, born about 1761, was a cordwainer.

REAL ESTATE.

His grandmother, Hannah Gillingham, who died in 1793, left to him the northern end of a house on the western side of what is now Summer street, near Essex Street, in Salem. In July (9th) of that year he mortgaged the property to John Dutch, for £10. This was discharged Dec. 26, 1800.* December 24, 1800 he mortgaged it again to John Dutch for $150, and this was discharged Feb. 19, 1802.† The same property was mortgaged about this time to Jonathan Hodges,‡ who finally purchased it September 28, 1811, of Jonathan Archer, administrator of the estate of Joseph Gardner, for $160.§ A picture of the old house with an account of its numerous owners, is given in the Essex Antiquarian, v. IV, pp. 162-3.

Joseph Gardner and his wife were given an undivided half of the western part of the Jonathan Neal house on the western corner of Broad and Cambridge streets, when Jonathan's property was divided, September 24, 1799.* They mortgaged this to Edward A. Holyoke, Dec. 28, 1808. This was discharged November 25, 1815.† They together with other heirs of Jonathan Neal, sold land in Danvers, Jan. 22, 1803, to Joseph Newhall, Jr.‡

Joseph Gardner married November 4, 1784,§ Sarah Neal, daughter of Jonathan and Annis (White) Neal.¶ She survived him and died in September, 1816, aged fifty-six years.¶ Her son Joseph Gardner, Jr., was appointed administrator, and the property amounting to $105.74, was divided among her sons John, David, Benjamin, Joseph, Jr. and Abel, May 20, 1817.

He died about 1811. The inventory of his estate dated April 13, 1811, mentioned "One half part of a house, with the land under the same, and is situated in Summer street in said Salem—$400." This was the only real estate. The personal property amounted to $80.23.†† Jonathan Archer the administrator charged $100 for his services, which brought the list of debts to $519.03, and made the estate insolvent. The court ordered the administrator to sell the real estate September 26, 1811. The estate was declared insolvent October 22, of the same year.‡‡ A report of the Commissioners of Claims, made April 22, 1812, gave a list of debts amounting to $283.14. The final account was rendered July 21, 1812, and accepted, the administrator being allowed fifty dollars.§§

Joseph Jr., was appointed guardian of his younger brothers ;—David aged 20, Benjamin aged 17 and Abel aged 12, April 21, 1812.¶¶

No. 3

THE DATE OF THE FOUNDING OF SALEM.

A LETTER ADDRESSED TO THE GOVERNOR OF MASSACHUSETTS ; TO WHICH IS ADDED A NOTE BY THE WRITER.

SALEM, June 28, 1901.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY, W. MURRAY CRANE,
Governor of the Commonwealth.

My Dear Sir:—

On July 6, 1896, the statement contained in the Manual of the General Court for that year, associating with the origin of Salem the date "August 23, 1630," was brought to the attention of the Essex Institute and it was voted to address the Governor in reference to the matter.

The delay which has occurred in acting upon this vote is due in part to efforts made from time to time to procure from various State officials a modification of the statement annually put forth by the Commonwealth. That object has not been fully accomplished, but I should hardly venture now to intrude upon your Excellency's time, burdened as it is with matters of pressing moment, had I not some assurance that antiquarian questions have an interest for your Excellency, and that you are in sympathy with the view that a date which is of importance enough to be stated at all should be stated correctly. The statement put forth in the Manual for the last ten years, unless more carefully explained and guarded than has been the case, seems likely to lead to misconception. I do not think that, according to any fair construction of terms, August 23, 1630, is either the date on which Salem was established or incorporated, or on which Salem is first mentioned in the Records of the State, or is therein first recorded as established or incorporated. Just what is meant by the words "established" and "incorporated," as applied in the Manual to a settlement so old as Salem, does not appear, nor does it appear just what is meant by "Records of the State." The treatment of Plymouth in the Manual would seem to show that the record quoted need not be the record of a specific event made at the time the event occurred.* We are not told whether the date, August 23, 1630, is the date of "first mention in the Records" or the date of "establishment" or the date of "incorporation." It would seem that the date chosen for commemoration, out of these three classes of dates included in the Manual, should be the earliest date of the three which can be substantiated. The history of pioneer settlements, in other parts of the country, is jealously cherished by the antiquary and the historian, and founders of States are held up, the world over, to honor and esteem. Lord Bacon has put them at the very head of the list. "The true marshalling of the Degrees of Sovereign Honor are these. In the first place are founders of States and Commonwealths." Should not the few pioneer settlements of the dominant race on the broad domain of this Continent be protected in every claim to lasting remembrance and regard? Looked at from this point of view, St. Augustine, Jamestown, Plymouth, Salem, become names of national rather than of local import.

On June 11, 1679 (Records of Massachusetts Vol. V. p. 279,) the General Court enacted as follows: "This Court, being informed that M^r W^m Hubbard hath taken paynes in compiling a history of New England, doe order, that our honored Gounor & W^m Stoughton, Esquire, Capt Daniel Fisher, Lieut W^m Johnson, & Capt W^m Torrey be a comittee to pervse the same, & make returne of their opinion thereof to the next session that the Court may then, as they shall then judge meete, take order for the impression thereof."

*See a note at the end of this Letter on page 210.

On Oct. 11, 1682 (Records of Massachusetts Vol. V. page 378) the General Court enacted as follows: "Whereas it hath binn thought necessary, & a duty incumbent vpon vs, to take due notice of all occurances & passages of Gods providence towards the people of this jurisdiction since their first arrivall in these parts, which may remajne to posterity, and that the Reuerand Mr Willjam Hubbard hath taken paynes to compile a history of this nature, w^{ch} the Court doeth with thankefullnes acknowledge; and, as a manifestacon * thereof, doe hereby order the Treasurer to pay vnto him the some of fiuety pounds in money, he transcribing it fairely into a booke, that it may be the more easely pervsed, in order to the satisfaction of this Court."

On March 30, 1683 (Records of Massachusetts Vol. V. page 394) the General Court enacted as follows: "This Court hauing formerly granted ffifty pounds to y^e Reu Mr W^m Hubbard in consideration of his pajne in collecting a history of the first planting & settling of this colony, as in October last, for 50^{li}, it is ordered that the Treasurer pay him or his order halfe of the sajd sume as soone as money comes into his hands."

On June 11, 1814 (Massachusetts Resolves 1812-1815. Chapter XXXVII page 519,) the General Court passed the following: "Resolve on the application of the Historical Society, providing for the purchase of 600 copies of Hubbard's History. 11th June 1814.

"Upon the petition of C. Gore, William Spooner and James Savage, Esquires, in behalf of the Historical Society.

"Resolved, For the reasons set forth in the said petition that the Legislature will take six hundred copies of Hubbard's General History of New England to be published by the said Society, to consist of one volume; and will pay the said Society two dollars for each volume, printed on good paper and well bound; and the Governor is hereby authorised to draw his warrant upon the Treasury for the same, upon the delivery of the books to the Secretary of the Commonwealth; and that one copy of said work shall be sent to the Clerk of each town in the Commonwealth for the use of the inhabitants thereof, and the residue shall remain at the disposal of the Legislature."

The Rev. William Hubbard was the minister settled at Ipswich, and was, as Dr. Felt, quoting the Rev. John Eliot, says, "for many years the most eminent minister in the County of Essex, equal to any in the Province for learning and candor, and superior to all his contemporaries as a writer." He was also the close personal friend of Roger Conant. Speaking, in his history, thus printed and distributed at the cost of the Commonwealth, of the Plymouth Settlers who removed thence to Cape Ann, he says:

"A door was opened for them at Cape Anne, a place on the other side of the Bay, whither they removed about the year 1625. After they had another short trial there, of about a year's continuance, they removed a third time a little lower towards the bottom of the Bay, being invited by the accommodations which they either saw or hoped to find on the other side of a creek near by, called Naumkeag, which afforded a considerable quantity of planting land near adjoining thereto. Here they took up their station upon a pleasant and fruitful neck of land, invironed with an arm of the sea on each side, in either of which vessels and ships of good burthen might safely anchor. In this place (soon after, by a minister that came with a company of honest planters, called Salem, from that in Psalm LXXVI, 2) was laid the first foundation on which the next colonies were built." (Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society, 2nd. series, Vol. V. p. 102.)

This seems to stamp the authority of the Commonwealth upon the statement that Naumkeag and Salem were two names for the same settlement and that this settlement was effected about 1626.

But fortunately we have the final authority of Governor William Bradford, who came to Plymouth in the Mayflower, became Governor in 1621, and for a generation held the office of Governor. On his arrival he began collecting material for history. He thought, writing in 1646, that he began to record his Annals about the year 1630. Shurtleff (Plymouth Colony Records, published by the State, Vol. I, preface, vii) puts the date at 1627. No chapter in the Annals of New England has had such an indorsement as the chapter written by Governor Bradford. The manuscript, after an unexplained sequestration of more than a century, has just been restored to this Commonwealth with a degree of pomp and circumstance never perhaps accorded to human utterance in modern times, and now reposes at the State House, guarded against deterioration, fire and theft, with ingenious measures of protection beyond which the resources of modern science have not advanced.

In 1860, the Hon. Robert C. Winthrop regarded this volume as so precious a heritage that His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, then on his way to Massachusetts, seemed to him to be the fit custodian to bring it from London and preside over its restoration to this Commonwealth. (See "The Bradford History" printed and distributed by the Commonwealth, 1898, page xliv) When it was restored, the consent of the Primate of all England was required, and that functionary found it proper to consult her Majesty, the Queen. (page xlix)

May 22, 1897, his Excellency Governor Wolcott called a joint Convention of the Massachusetts Legislature to accept the Bradford History from the hands of ex-Ambassador Bayard, lately returned from the Court of St. James, the manuscript having been ordered by the Consistory Court of the Diocese of London to be returned through Mr. Bayard to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, although its return had previously been several times refused on the ground that an Act of Parliament was necessary. The Convention was held May 26; the manuscript was accepted; addresses were made by the senior Senator of Massachusetts, by his Excellency, and by ex-Ambassador Bayard; the publication and distribution of the History by the Commonwealth was provided for; and the thanks of the Commonwealth were duly returned to the Archbishop of Canterbury and to the Lord Bishop of London.

Senator Hoar, on the acceptance of the volume by the Governor, spoke of it (page xxxix) as "the only authentic history of the founding of their Commonwealth; the only authentic history of what we have a right to consider the most important political transaction that has ever taken place on the face of the earth." He also said (p. xlix) "If there were in existence in England a history of King Alfred's reign for thirty years, written by his own hand, it would not be more precious in the eyes of Englishmen than this manuscript is to us." And he added "Wherever it shall go it will be an object of reverent care. I do not think many Americans will gaze upon it without a little trembling of the lips and a little gathering of mist in the eyes, as they think of the story * * * which that book tells,—which the hand of the great leader and founder of America has traced on those pages. There is nothing like it in human annals since the story of Bethlehem." (p. lv) "When I went abroad," said the Senator, "I determined to visit the locality * * * from which Bradford and Brewster and Robinson came, and where their first church was formed * * * but I longed especially to see the manuscript of Bradford at Fulham, which then seemed to me, as it now seems to me, the most precious manuscript on earth, unless we could recover one of the four Gospels as it came in the beginning from the pen of the Evangelist. (p. xlvi). Addressing Mr. Bayard the Senator said (p. liv), "You are entitled, Sir, to the gratitude of Massachusetts, to the gratitude of every lover of Massachusetts, and of every lover of the country." And he closed his address with these words (p. lvi) "Of all these things this is the original record by the hand of our beloved father and founder. Massachusetts will preserve it until the time shall come that her children are unworthy of it; and that time shall come,—never."

In his chronicle of the year 1625, extending, according to the calendar of that day from March 25, A. D. 1625 to March 25 A. D. 1626, as we reckon, Governor Bradford, speaking of Lyford, says, (p. 237) "From thence he removed to Namkeke, since called Salem."

In his account of the year 1628 (p. 286) Governor Bradford chronicles the troubles with Morton at Merry

Mount, and says, "Shortly after came over that worthy gentleman, Mr. John Indecott, who brought over a patent under y^e broad seall, for y^e governmente of y^e Massachusetts, who visiting those parts caused y^t May-polle to be cutt downe, and rebuked them for their profannes." And it appears that (p. 289) "Those that joyned in this action against Morton were from Pascataway, Namkeake, Winisimett," etc. They of Plymouth were suing the King, before March 19, 1628/9 (pp. 300-1) to make them "a corporation, and so inable them to make & execute lawes, in such large & ample maner as y^e Massachusett plantation hath it."

From his account of the year 1629 (pp. 295-297.) it appears that a party of "35 Leyden people" came over in May, 1629, and "had passage with y^e ships that came to Salem, and brought over many Godly persons to begin y^e plantations & churches of Christ ther, & in y^e Bay of Massachusetts, and arrived here aboute August." They were charged for their "fetching hither from Salem & y^e Bay, wher they and their goods were landed."

And (pp. 314, 5, 6, 7.) "it was before noted that sundry of those that came from Leyden, came over in the ships y^t came to Salem, wher Mr. Endecott had cheefe comand." And (pp. 330-1) Governor Bradford received a letter from Governor Endecott, dated Naumkeak, May 11. ano. 1629, thanking him for previous favors and discussing church polity, and another from Charles Gott, dated at Salem July 30, 1629, detailing, "ther proceedings in their church affaires at Salem, which was y^e 2. church erected in these parts." Governor Bradford, as early as Sept. 6, 1629, was writing to James Sherley, and dating his letter from Salem. And the letter-book shows that soon after May 11, 1629, "the Lord sent unto us many Godly persons into the land: these began to pitch at Naumkeak, since called by them Salem, to which place was come in the latter end of summer before, a worthy gentleman, Mr. John Endecott by name, and some others with him, to make some preparation for the rest."

Governor Winthrop, who reached Salem in June, 1630, speaks of the place in his journal, on June 12, as Nahumkeck, but on June 17, on July 2, and on July 7, as Salem.

In the Records of Massachusetts, Vol. I, page 25, under date of February 23, 1628/9, appears this entry: "This day delivered a warrant * * * to pay * * * one hundred pounds, in pte of the ffreight of the * * * Heneri Gawden Mr. from Waimouth to Nahumkeke, the goods shipt * * of lading dated 20 June last, beeing p. bill of ladinge 46 1/2 tons of * * * besyds y^e chardge of Capten John Endecott, his wiffe and * * psons * * his company, their passage & dyett." Your Excellency will find the portion of the Records of Massachusetts printed in 1853 by order of the Legislature (Vol. I, pages 37-70, and pages 361-5 and pages 383-409) entirely unintelligible, except for the key furnished by the existence of the Settlement maintained at Salem between February, 1628/9 and March 1629/30.

The Report of the State Census of 1865 declared that Salem was incorporated in 1629. That of the Census of 1875 and of 1885 give the date of incorporation as June 24, 1629. That of 1895 throws more light upon the matter and states that Naumkeag is mentioned in 1628,—that Conant built the first house there in 1626,—that Endecott landed there in 1628,—and that Salem appears by its present name, August 23, 1630. In the Manual for 1901, which states that the table of dates is prepared by the Commissioner of Public Records, a slightly different designation of the list of dates from that before in use is given, and the date, August 23, 1630, is placed against the name of Salem. On that day Salem is described in the Manual for 1901 as "first mentioned in Records of the State or therein recorded as established or incorporated." I hope I have been able to show, upon evidence of the highest recognized authority, promulgated in the name and under the Seal of the Commonwealth, and accepted by every historical student, that August 23, 1630, is neither the date of the settlement nor of the establishment nor of the incorporation of the place known to history as Salem, nor of its first mention in the Records of the State.

For upwards of forty years it has been the practice of the General Court to issue a yearly Manual, containing, in addition to the list of officers for the year, and a variety of useful facts, "other statistical information." Beginning with the year 1871, it has been the practice to include, in this statistical information, a table giving some facts in the history of each of the cities and towns of the Commonwealth. From 1871 until 1891, the date of the incorporation of Salem was stated in this table as June 24, 1629, and the Indian name of Salem as Naumkeage or Naumkeake. The authority quoted for this information was a State Document entitled "Abstract of Census of 1860" (see page 222) and this authority was accepted for twenty years. The Manual for 1892 makes a new departure. It quotes, as its authority, the Report of the Commissioner of Public Records for 1885, and introduces a list of dates entitled "date of Establishment or Incorporation, or First Mentioned in the Records." For ten years this plan was adhered to, but without indicating which of the three possible dates was the date given. Under this system the date assigned to Salem was August 23, 1630.

If the phrase "first mentioned in State Records" were held to mean records made at the time of the events recorded, that rule when applied to the earlier settlements would put them at an obvious disadvantage as compared with the later, because it is the early records of the Colony which are mostly missing. Thus the Pioneers, whose courageous enterprise is uniformly held to constitute a claim on the gratitude of their posterity, would suffer most from the losses and ravages of time.

The need of a more careful wording of the statement promulgated yearly in the Manual of the General Court seems to be the more imperative because the Manual suggests an apparent conflict between the historical accuracy of the City and that of the State. For more than sixty years, Salem has used a municipal seal bearing on its face a date other and earlier than 1630, as the date of its origin. I think your Excellency will be interested to avoid, if possible, even the semblance of a clash of this kind between the Commonwealth you so honorably represent and its second oldest settlement,—a settlement which has, more than once, been called on to be the seat of its Colonial or Provincial authority.

I am, very respectfully yours,

[Signed]

ROBERT S. RANTOUL.

A NOTE TO

See ante, page 202.

Should this letter ever possess interest enough to be published, the reference it contains to the founding of Plymouth ought to be developed a little further. I suppose no one would have the hardihood to print, over the seal of this Commonwealth, a statement associating the founding of Plymouth with any date later than 1620. Accordingly, when the ill-conceived plan was adopted of allowing no dates for the foundation of towns to appear in the Manual of the General Court which are not found in the State Archives, a difficulty was at once encountered. Dr. Shurtleff, an accomplished antiquary and historian,—a member of various learned societies and Mayor of Boston for the years 1868, 1869 and 1870, had been employed by the Commonwealth in the years 1855, 1856 and 1857, to edit and see through the press the Plymouth Colony Records, and had stated in his prefatory chapter that no contemporaneous Plymouth Records existed bearing an earlier date than 1627 (See Plymouth Colony Records vol. I, p. vii.). The plan of relying exclusively on existing contemporary records must therefore be abandoned as to Plymouth. To print in a State publication the word "Plymouth" with the figures "1627" after it would have operated like lightning in a powder-mill. An exception had to be made, but the fact is not noted in the Manual. The same course was pursued which would have been necessary had a mouse, or a book-worm, or a drop of acid, or a lighted match, or an ink-blot effaced or eaten out from the contemporary records still preserved at the State House the date of some one of our earlier settlements. Evidence must be sought and found aliunde.

For some years the accepted date, "December 22, 1620," was inserted without comment. Then, in the issue of 1892, "December 22" was dropped, and apparently, upon the strength of a conjecture of David Pulsifer, an employee in the office of the Secretary of State, who was entrusted with completing the work of Dr. Shurtleff and who saw the last volumes through the press,—this conjecture was printed at that time,—it was assumed that, although no contemporary record existed at the State House of a landing, on December 22, it was probable that some part of the early Plymouth Records were written at some time during the year 1620. This is the familiar process of reasoning in a circle. If any part of the Plymouth Records bore date "1620," Plymouth must have been settled as early as that year. So the date "1620,"—sacred throughout the civilized world,—was not tampered with. It was very properly retained, but no day or month of the year 1620 could be assigned to the settlement of Plymouth on contemporary evidence to be found at the State House, because no contemporary account of the settlement of Plymouth in that year is to be found at the State House. In the case of every other settlement of importance in the state month and day are given.

The value of Mr. Pulsifer's conjecture (Deeds 1620-1651 Vol. I, pp. iii-iv,—see Plymouth Colony Records. vol. XII.) as placed against Dr. Shurtleff's distinct assertion (see vol. I. p. vii.) I do not know. But if Mr. Pulsifer is a better witness as to the history of one part of the Commonwealth than as to that of another, his evidence is the best as to Essex County, where he was born and grew up, residing at Ipswich and at Salem and employed on the local records in both places for years until, in 1841, he was engaged at the State House in the office of the Secretary of State, remaining there until 1882. In 1860 and in 1865 he furnished the Secretary of State, for his census report of those years, with a tabular statement of the dates of the settlement of towns in Massachusetts. In this he adopted, for the date of the founding of Salem, the date of the change of name from Naumkeag to Salem, which change occurred on the arrival of Higginson, June 24, 1629. (See Census of Massachusetts for 1860, p. 222, and in 1865 p. 173.) No fact in local history is better established or more familiar to the general reader than that Salem was an important factor in the government of this Colony before August, 1630, and if it comports with the official sense of fitness in the Commonwealth to ignore the familiar fact in its published documents, a full explanation should accompany in every instance so misleading a statement.

GRAND TURK, ship, 564 tons, Salem, 1791. Reg. Mar. 1, 1792. Elias H. Derby, owner ; Benjamin Hodges, master.

[The name "Grand Turk" is one of the most famous in the annals of Salem shipping. There were at least three vessels of that name.

(1) The ship "Grand Turk" of 300 tons built at the South Shore for a privateer in 1781 for Elias Haskett Derby. She made at least one voyage as such, as she is said by Mr. Leavitt, to have captured the "Pompey," which later became the "America," first of the name. After the Revolution, in Nov., 1784, this "Grand Turk" was sent by Mr. Derby to the Cape of Good Hope. This was probably the most distant voyage made from Salem up to that time. Soon after her return on Nov. 28, 1785, the "Grand Turk" cleared for the Isle of France, and touching at that place pushed on to Canton, being the first vessel from New England to visit China. She left Salem again in Dec., 1787 and went to the Isle of France, where she was sold in 1788. Being sold before 1789, the first "Grand Turk" does not appear in the foregoing list. At the Peabody Academy of Science, there is a punch bowl brought from Canton in 1786, commemorative of the voyage. On the side and in the center of this bowl are representations of the ship with the inscription "Ship Grand Turk at Canton 1786."

(2) The ship "Grand Turk" of 564 tons built at Salem in 1791 for Elias Hasket Derby. This was the first vessel to be built in Salem by the famous ship builder, Enos Briggs, who came here to build this ship and finally brought his family and settled in Salem permanently. This is the vessel registered in the list above. She made several successful voyages. I do not know her ultimate fate, but she seems to have disappeared before 1800, as no mention of her occurs later. There are no pictures or models of her in the collections in Salem but her dimensions are given in full, in Leavitt, "Materials for History of Salem Ship Building," Essex Inst. Hist. Colls. VI, 226.

(3) The brig or brigantine "Grand Turk" of 309 tons built at Wiscasset, Me., in 1812. This vessel was a celebrated privateer in the War of 1812, carrying eighteen guns and about one hundred and fifty men. Singularly enough this vessel although officered by Salem men and sailing in and out of Salem repeatedly, appears not to have been permanently registered here. Probably she was owned in Boston. A copy of her journal however was sworn to before the collector at Salem, and June 3, 1815, she took out a temporary document here in which William Gray and Thomas Webb of Boston appear as owners. After the war she appears to have made merchant voyages for William Gray of Boston. For an excellent account of her privateering voyages see MacClay, "Hist. of Amer. Privateers," pp. 391-400. MacClay however falls into the singular error of failing to discover that there were three distinct vessels named "Grand Turk" and attributes the adventures of all to one vessel. Thus he makes the privateer of 1812 to have been over thirty years old when she made her escape from the British frigates. Marvin in "The American Merchant Marine" falls into the same error. I know of no pictures or models of the privateer brig.

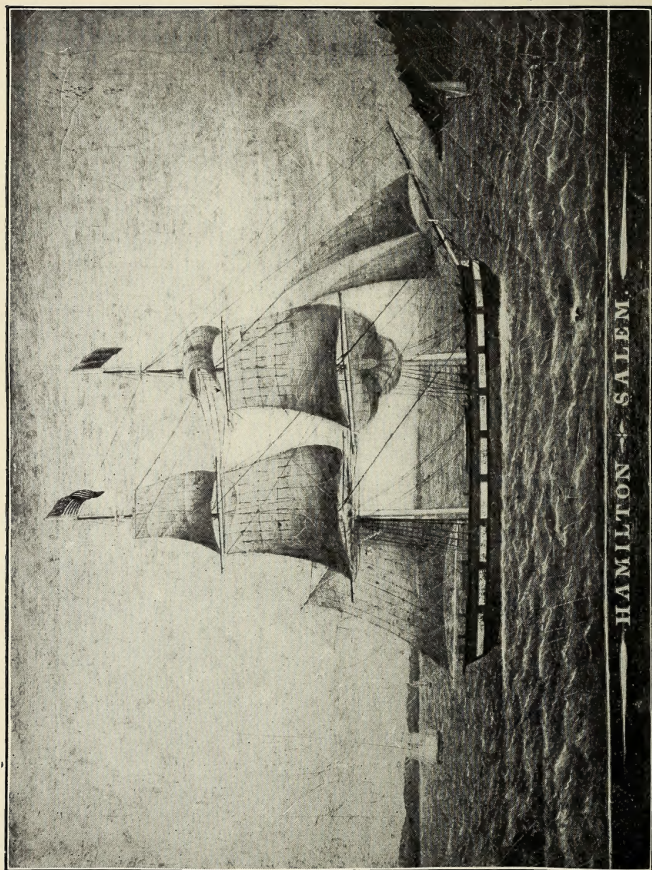

Besides the various accounts mentioned above, there are references to the voyages of the three vessels in the "Hist. of Essex County." I, 82, 109 (to the first); I, 107 (to the second); and I, 195, 211, (to the third); also in the "Historical Sketch of Salem," pp. 130, 214 and 223; and Leavitt, "Private Armed Vessels During the War of 1812," Essex Inst. Hist. Colls. II, 57.]

THOMAS GARDNER, PLANTER, AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

BY FRANK A. GARDNER, M. D.

REAL ESTATE.

Joseph Gardner bought of John Gardner (No. 110) Aug. 20, 1792, portions of a house, with bakehouse and land, on the southern side of Bridge street, west of Pleasant street.* He paid £120 for the property, and mortgaged it to the grantor for a like amount. This mortgage was discharged Sept. 12, 1797.† He mortgaged certain parts of the house with the furniture, to Abigail Berry, July 4, 1794,‡ and redeemed the property Sept. 12, 1797.§ On the following day he purchased the remainder of the property of William Obear for $1250,|| and mortgaged it to Thomas Hovey|| and John Gardner.¶ These were cancelled March 27, 1801, together with another mortgage in favor of Eunice Richardson dated June 12, 1798. He conveyed "certain parts" of the dwelling house to Charles Collins, Sept. 14, 1797, for $240.†† Small lots on the eastern end of this estate fronting on Pleasant street were sold by him in 1799 and 1801.‡‡

He offered for sale the house, barn, bakehouse and other buildings, Mar. 26, 1801,§§ and on the 27th of the same month deeded the property to John Melville of Marblehead for $2025.||| The land thus sold included in addition to the purchases above mentioned, several small lots which he had purchased of Cornelius Bartlett, Josiah Dodge and Thomas Buxton in 1797.* In the Salem Gazette of March 17, 1801, he announced that he would move to his new dwelling house on March street, where he intended "carrying on the Bakery business, &c as usual."

He had purchased in 1800 and 1801, of the heirs of Dudley Woodbridge and Stephen Phillips, two lots, one containing 116 3-4 poles, and the other 2 acres and 19 1-2 poles of land on the eastern side of what is now March street.† April 17, 1801, he bought an additional lot of 125 3-4 poles bounding this on the northwest, having previously purchased the land still further northwest to the North River. The northernmost lot, with a frontage of 110 feet on March street, he sold to Aaron Waite, Jerathaniel Pierce and Israel Williams, April 16, 1801, for $200.‡ The three lots next south of the last named, measuring in all 180 feet on March street, he mortgaged April 27, 1801, to John Osgood for $400. This was discharged, July 3, 1804.§ Joseph's house was located on the northern portion of this last named group, and had a frontage of 80 feet on March street. He mortgaged this homestead lot to Jesse Richardson in 1813,|| to Benjamin Cheever in 1814,¶ to Brackley Rose in 1817, to Temple Hardy†† and Samuel Gardner in 1821.‡‡ He sold a narrow strip (7 feet wide) to Thomas Gwinn, June 3, 1829.§§ This lot was assigned to Thorndike Deland, May 9, 1829,§§ who sold it to Joseph's son Simon, Jan. 2, 1830.||

Next south of the homestead lot was one measuring 30 feet front and 157 feet deep, which he sold to Thomas Tate, May 9, 1807, for $700.¶¶ South of this was a way

25 feet wide known as Gardner's Court, now known as March Street Court, which was laid out about 1805.* The lot south of this measuring 41 feet, 6 inches front, and 290 feet deep, he sold to Augustus Converse June 12, 1805, for $700.* The next lot, the last of Joseph Gardner's holdings fronting on March street, measured 120 feet front, and 295 feet in depth. He mortgaged it to John Osgood July 10, 1802, (discharged July 3, 1804,)† and sold it July 2, 1804, to Augustus Converse for $817.37.‡

He sold land bordering on Gardner's court to Jonathan Smith, Jesse Richardson, William Dodge, Mary Dowbridge wife of Andrew, Caleb M. Ames and Temple Hardy. One of the lots sold to Jesse Richardson and the one sold to William Dodge he repurchased.§ He offered for sale in the Salem Gazette, March 13, 1807, two dwelling houses, a store and two other house lots in March street.

April 21, 1797, he bought of Henry Williams, a lot of land on the western side of Williams street, extending down to the North River flats, paying £8, 12 shill. for the same.¶ This lot measured 158 feet on the street. The northern end of the lot, measuring 105 feet, 6 inches on the street, he sold to Josiah Richardson in May, 1797, for £21, 9 shill.,¶ and the remainder of the lot with dwelling house, he sold to Walter Price Bartlett, April 12, 1798, for $720.¶

He bought of B. Lamson, of Beverly, Nov. 10, 1818, four and one half acres of land at Snake Hill Pasture, Montserrat, Beverly. During the next two years he bought many cow rights in this pasture and when he transferred his holdings to his brother Samuel, March 23, 1821, he owned 9-14 of the property.†† He regained possession of this land by purchase from his brother, Jan. 31,

1823, buying in addition one share which Samuel had bought of a third party.* He mortgaged his ten rights in the pasture to Caleb Smith, Mar. 21, 1823,* and in 1827 (Oct. 15) again mortgaged his "sixty-four acres and one hundred and four rods in Snake Hill Proprietary" to John S. Felton of Danvers, for $400,† and Joseph Gardner's assignee, Thorndike Deland sold his right to the property to said Felton, Aug. 12, 1829.‡

He bought a triangular piece of land in Beverly, near the bridge, of Edward Ford, March 11, 1828, and sold the same in the following June (15th) to the town of Beverly.§ A lot of marsh land at "Royal side" measuring three quarters of an acre, and a mud wharf in the same locality, were mentioned in the list of lots assigned to Thorndike Deland. They were sold Aug. 12, 1829, to John S. Felton, of Danvers.||

He owned several other lots which he sold during his life, including the following:—a house and lot on the margin of Collins' Cove;¶ a lot with buildings thereon, between Federal street and the North River; one third part of the western end of the mansion house of Robert Peele which he bought of Charles Gowen April 27, 1812,†† and sold to Thomas Needham; and other real estate transactions of minor importance.

Joseph Gardner married at Salem, December 10, 1789, Elizabeth Bell, daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth (Peele) Bell.‡‡ She died in October, 1831, and was buried "from her late residence on Bridge Street."§§ He died in November, 1830, and was buried from "his late residence in March street." The members of the Salem Charitable Mechanics Association were invited to attend the funeral.|| His widow was appointed administratrix, Feb. 15, 1831.

Daniel B. Gardner was a grocer at 33 Bridge street as early as 1837, (living at that time in Gardner's court off March street). Later (1842) he conducted a clothing store at 110 Derby street, living at number 114. About 1850 he opened a place at 14 Front street as a wholesale grocer. He continued in business here for many years, residing at 4 Barton square. He owned land on Gardner's court which he sold in 1832 to P. L. Wiggin,† and a house and lot on the corner of Bridge and Pearl streets which was conveyed by him to Samuel Gardner jr. (No. 335). Feb. 5, 1839.‡ June 3, 1844 he bought of Philip Chase, a lot of land on the south side of Derby street, which he sold to S. G. Benjamin Franklin Gardner graduated from the Phillips Grammar school in Salem, and finished his preliminary education at Master Leavitt’s Latin Grammar School. He left Salem, March 6, 1855, for Chapel Hill, Texas, where he resided three years. Later he read medicine with Dr. Paul H. Otey, a distinguished surgeon. He graduated at the Medical College of Virginia in 1862 and was appointed surgeon P. A. C. S. and served at the Howard Grove Hospital, Richmond, Va.; at Murfreesboro, Shelbyville, Tullahoma, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Dalton, Ringold and Atlanta, Ga. Shortly before the close of the war he was transferred to Raleigh, N. C. He remained there in private practice for two years, when he was appointed surgeon-in-chief of the Alabama and Chattanooga R. R. This position he held until he resigned it to take up private practice at Bloomsburg, Pa. He has been very successful as a physician and surgeon. “Biographical Sketches of Leading Citizens of the 17th Congressional District of Penna.” refers to him as “a man of wonderful nerve and superior judgment, and his coolness in the most trying cases inspires confidence in his patients. He is widely known through the eastern part of the state and is often called to great distances to perform operations.” He is a member of the American Medical Association and the State Medical Societies of North Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and Pennsylvania.

Later he read medicine with Dr. Charles Neilson of Madison, Ind., and then attended a medical college in Cincinnati, Ohio. After receiving his diploma he returned to Madison and practiced medicine. He enlisted, Sept. 1, 1861, at Indianapolis, Ind. in Co. B., 6th Reg't, Indiana Volunteers, for three years. In 1862 he was appointed Ass't Surgeon of the 54th Reg't of Indiana, in the Army of the Cumberland and Mississippi. He was in the battles of Jackson, Big Black River, Port Gibson, Shiloh, Champion Hill and Thomaston. At hospital No. 9, Raymond, Miss., he had charge when the place was captured by a confederate squad and all of his sick and wounded were marched off. General Pemberton rode up to Dr. Pope and asked if any of his men had been there, adding,—“I hope they have made no trouble for you doctor?” The general asked if he could do anything for him and Dr. Pope requested that he give an order for the return of all who were unable to walk a quarter of a mile. This request was granted and in trying to relieve the injured, Dr. Pope was knocked down an embankment by a Confederate cavalry horse and severely injured. ENGLISH NOTES ABOUT EARLY SETTLERS IN NEW ENGLAND.

Communicated by Lothrop Withington, 30 Little Russell Street,
W. C., London (including "Gleanings" by Henry Fitz

RICHARD NORTON of Mitcham, Surrey, Esq. 10 August 1686; proved 23 September 1686. I have settled upon my dear and loving wife Anne my manor of Barton and sundry lands and tenements in the County of Bedford for life. I am a freeman of the city of London. I give my annual rent or rent charge of sixteen pounds coming out of the Manor of Sharpenhoe in Bedford to my son John; ten pounds thereof to be disposed for and towards the maintenance of a free school at Sharpenhoe, for eight poor children, four to be of Sharpenhoe and four of Streatley. The remaining six pounds thereof to be paid by the said John Norton to my wife Anne, his mother. Five hundred pounds apiece to be paid to my daughters Mary and Katherine Norton at their respective ages of twenty one years. My manors, messuages, &c., in Barton, Sharpenhoe, Streatley, Farly, Whipperly, Luton, Bedford, Westning or elsewhere in said county of Bedford. My messuages in Cornhill, London, settled upon my son John as my heir male. Money laid out in rebuilding them.

I give to my daughter Anne, whom I have preferred in marriage, ten pounds and to her husband Mr. Bezaleel Sherman ten pounds, to buy them mourning. Similar bequests to daughter Ellen and her husband Mr. Edward Fisher. To son Richard, at age of four and twenty (certain manors, &c.) in Yorkshire. A portion to be provided for my daughter Dorothy Norton at her age of twenty and one years. A provisional bequest to three grandchildren, Norton, Anne, and Elizabeth Sherman. Messuages, &c., near Newgate street and St. Martin's Le Grand, London. Wife Anne to be executrix and my son in law Mr. Bezaleel Sherman and my loving kinsman Mr. Richard Bowater to be overseers.

Admon, de bonis non was granted 1 June 1705 to Richard Lawrence husband and administrator of Dorothy Lawrence als Norton deceased, while she lived a daughter, &c., of the deceased, Anne Norton the relict being also defunct.

HUSSEY.

CHRISTOPHER HUSSEY of London, of the parish of St. Martin's in the Fields, gent, 30 August 1611; proved 16 October 1611. To my brother Richard Hussie, apprentice in London, in the parish of St. Andrew's, Holborne, four score pounds, to be paid unto him 15 April 1623 as appeareth upon a pair of Indentures indented between Ellis Elsse of Westoning in the County of Bedford, yeoman, and myself. To my sister Anne Hussie, of Westoning aforesaid, twenty pounds, to be paid in the same manner and at the aforesaid time as the former legacy. I give unto John Hussie, my wife's son, ten pounds upon a bond payable by the said Ellis Elsse, at the day and time specified. I give unto my god daughter Jane Brede six pounds, and four pounds unto the rest of John Brede's children, to be equally divided amongst them, which sum of six pounds and four pounds is to be paid unto them, according to the aforesaid payments, at the end and term of years before named. The residue to my wife Anne, whom I do make my sole executrix. And I do ordain my loving friend John Brede of Westoning overseer.

Wit: Nichas Dannell the writer, vicar of Alton, Humfrey Kempe.

Then follows a list of "Debtes owing unto Mr. Hussye" and "Debtes that I owe." The former seem to be connected with the court, such as "Richard Hayles a Harbinger to ye King," "Davie Bull grome of the Chamber," "Raffe Smithe in ordinary of y^e Guard," "Due unto me from his Ma^ty for my bill of sicknes," "One other bill from his Maiestie." "It. for makinge ready of Hampton Court £^s. It. for makinge ready for his Ma^tie at Salesbury £iii vi^s viii^d. It. for makinge ready ffanneham £xvi xvi^s viii^d."

"I pray you goodman Brede deliver those writings which y^e haue of myne in youre Custodye unto my wife at what tyme soeuer she shall send for them or demaund them."

SEWALL.

WALTER COMPTON of Hartpurye in the County of the City of Gloucester, Esq., 9 October 1584; proved 3 August 1585. To be buried in the church of Byssesley where my father and mother were buried. My farm of Aveninge. Henry Compton, son of my son William. My daughters Dorothy and Anne Compton at seventeen. To the said Henry Compton and Johanne his wife and the longest liver of them my one half of the parsonage of Bysseley and all mine estate, interest and term of years in and to the said moiety or one half of the said parsonage yet to come and undetermined ; the other moiety or one half of the said parsonage is to come unto my cousin William Shewell according to the true meaning and conclusion heretofore had and agreed upon between me and my said cousin Shewell his father, and myself or mine assigns to take no benefit of that moiety or half by way of survivor. Certain lands in the parish of Mynchenhampton. Walter Williams my base son. Indenture made with Sir Walter Dennys, Knight, 20 Dec. 1st Eliz.:. William Compton my son and heir apparent to be sole executor. If he refuse to pay legacies, &c., then my wife Alice to be executrix.

Brudenell, 38.

CURWEN.

THOMAS CURWEN of Sybertoft "hole of mynd and syke in body," 19 May, 1557, proved the last of July, 1557. My body to be buried in the churchyard of St. Elyn. To Elizabeth, Anne and Sabyn, to each of them a cow, four ewes and four lambs. Also to Elizabeth one hogrell, a white pan and a posnet, to Anne a brass pot and a "cawdron," and to Sabayne a brass pot, a little pan and six shillings eight pence. To Margaret a yearling calf and to her child a ewe and a lamb. Other bequests to the daughters. To Margeret my daughter's child a weaning calf. The residue to Henry my son whom I make my executor. I constitute and make Robert Dawes and Edward Jenson my overseers. These being witness Sr. John Lewyn my ghostly father vicar there and Thomas Chapman, with other.

Essex County Court Papers, Vol. XXXVII, leaf 124.

To ye Honoured County Court, held at Ipswich on ye 31: of March 1685, ye claime of Samuel Gardner Senr to part of ye Estate—Capt. George Corwin deceased dyed possessed of with ye Reasons of his Claim in behalfe of five Children he haus liveing by Mary one of ye two daughters of Mrs. Elizabeth Corwin deceased which shee had by a former husboun Mr. John White & brought with her, to & were brought up by Capt. George Corwin abovesd.

1 Reason is, because y^t it is a thing known & owned that Capt. Corwin abovesd brought no Estate or so little as may be called none with him in marriage to Elizabeth abovesd & that what estate they then had came by her & was as I have herd about foure hundred pounds.

2ly because y^t Mrs. Elizabeth Corwin abovesd tould me about ye time of my marriage with Mary abovesd that shee had reserved no certain sumb for her daughters as their portions, but had by agreement committed all into her husbands hands in thier behalf to run all adventures with the estate so y^t if all were lost they could claim nothing & that a reasonable advance in case of increase was by agreement thier dew.

3ly becaus as the estate came by her & what she brought was the root from which ye rest have grown so what increas there was to the estate was in the time of her life & she a help therein.

4ly my father Captain George Corwin did promise me upon marriage that he would doe as much for & make me & my wife every way equal with Samuel Andrew & his wife who married the other sister which is yet to be done, there being above one hundred pounds as is well known given in a wedding dinner more to them than to us & I was then promised it should be made up in another way, there being also one of his children brought up from 1 yearould for him which could not cost less than 3 or 4 Score pounds there being no such thing done for me I haveing 150^{li} at least lesse than he.

5ly my father Corwin have told me that he would make up what was wanting to my children at his decease but was prevented & is still dew to them & him who humbly requesteth this honoured Court will do him right herein: & for proof of what is asserted I can and will make oath when called thereto: 1: 2: 1685. by Samuel Gardner.

HERBERT.

THOMAS HARBERD of Northampton, 13 November 1587 (probate act not registered). To Alice my wife the house I now dwell in during her life &c. the house to son William and his lawfully begotten heirs, and for want of them to my son Thomas, and so from one to another. To sons Thomas and John six pounds thirteen shillings and four pence each. To daughter Grace and Margaret Harberd the same. Wife Alice to be executrix and William Burrowe and Abraham Ventris to be overseers.

Arch. Northampton, 1st Series, Book V, folio 307.

The widow ALICE HARBERD of St. Mary's Northampton declared her nuncupative will upon New Year's Day, the first of January 1588/9. She willed that M^r Marshe, M^r Coles, Mr. Burrow and Abraham Ventris should take her children, all her goods and lands whatsoever, and should use and bestow the same to the use of her children according to their discretion &c. Proved 23 January 1588/9.

Arch. Northampton 1st Series, Book V, folio 316.

JOHN HARBEART, one of the Aldermen of the town of Northampton, 28 December 1641, proved 27 February 1644. To my son Samuel all the house that I now dwell in, being part of the New Rents, so-called, and purchased, one part of M^r Pots and the other part of Mr. Roger Pendleton. Also I give him one tenement purchased of John Batisen, now in the occupation of Tho: Houghton, and one close or orchard in St. Edmond's End, one part purchased of Mr. Taby Caldwell and the other of Mr. Henry Neale; my wife Susanna to enjoy the rents &c. thence arising, for her life, towards her maintenance, and then to come to Samuel, he to pay forty pounds to my daughter Susanna, as part of her portion, as soon as the land comes into his hand and three score pounds more when she is one and twenty years of age, and to my son Jeremiah one hundred pounds at his age of one and twenty years, and to my son Daniel four score pounds at two and twenty, and to my son William four score pounds at twenty two. And for the raising of these monies to be paid to Susanna, Jeremiah, Daniel and William I leave the tenement

I bought of the Corporation of Northampton, being the corner house butting upon the Hind (?) on the North side and the tenement of Widow Smith on the West side and the Barly Hill on the East side and the tenement bought of John Batischen on the South side, and one workhouse or stable and the garden that I purchased of Mr. Raphael Humphry adjoining to Mr. Flint's on the West side and the house of Mr. Humphrey in the possession of Mr. Kimball on the East side, to be sold by my executrix with the advice of Will. Selby and John Selby whom I leave my overseers. If all these my children die without heirs then to go to my son John Harbert and my daughter Elizabeth Curwin equally divided and their heirs. My son John shall have twenty shillings within three months after my death. To my daughter Elizabeth Curwines children twenty shillings apiece, named Elizabeth, Mary and Samuel. All my other goods &c. I bequeath unto my wife Susanna Harbert whom I make my full executrix.

In a codicil, added 20 January 1643, he speaks of his son William being dead.

Arch. Northampton 3d Series, Book B, folio 78.

DANIEL HERBERT of the town of Northampton, draper, 9 November 1696, proved 23 February 1702/3. To my nephew John Herbert, of the said town, hosier and his heirs &c all that messuage or tenement in the said town wherein he doth now dwell (a messuage in the possession of Robert Ives gent. and mayor of the town being on the East side thereof); also my farm in Burton Latimer, called Cabell's farm &c. To his daughter Rachel Herbert five pounds, to be laid out in a piece of plate for her. To Mary Watts, daughter of Thomas Watts of Wootton, gent^t, forty pounds. To Joseph, Martha, Elizabeth, Rebecca and Dorcas Watts, five other of his children, twenty pounds each. To Elizabeth Plimpton, daughter of M^{rs} Dorothy Plimpton of London, fifty pounds. To Thomas and Edward Winter sons of John Winter of Hardington yeoman. To Epentus Wills son of Epenetus Wills and Sarah his wife, which Sarah was daughter of Bartholomew Higgins late of Preston Davery, yeoman. Twenty pounds to be laid out in the purchase of a tenement in Northampton for the use of John Jackson, shoemaker and Sarah his wife, for their lives, and afterwards for their son John Jackson and his heirs and assigns forever. To the poor of Northampton, ten pounds, to be laid out in two penny wheaten bread and distributed amongst them the poor of All Saints to have the greatest share. To my nephew Zachariah Herbert my messuage wherein I now dwell being a corner house at the North end of a Street called the Drapery, on the East side thereof next the Market Hill, and my farm at Burton Latimer's called Blundell's farm, he to pay out of the rents of said farm at the end of three years after my decease, to the then mayor and to the Deputy Recorder of the town and to the four several ministers of the four several parishes ten pounds to be laid out in setting forth three or four boys apprentices to some trade. And then they shall forbear to set forth any more boys untill they shall have raised enough to give to every boy ten pounds at the expiration of his apprenticeship. And my nephew shall after the third year &c. pay yearly to the said trustees the sum of ten pounds &c., my own relations to be preferred and next to them the poor relations of my late wife, Elizabeth and after them, sons of poor inhabitants of Northampton.

DOWNING.

GEORGE DOWNING of Beccles in Suffolk, 20 December 1561, proved 26 June 1564. My body to be buried in the churchyard of Beccles. I will that Cicely my wife shall have all those my two houses that I dwell in, lying and being in Beccles, which I late purchased of John Thorne departed, to hold the term of her natural life, she keeping herself sole and unmarried. After her death I give the said two houses to Barnabe Downing my son, if of the age of twenty five years at the day of the departing of the said Cicely, or else the supervisors of my will shall have the setting and letting of the said two houses from the day of her departing until the said Barnabe shall accomplish the said age. In case of his death then to my son John Downing, at the same age; next to my son George Downing, at the same age; next to my son William, at the same age; and lastly to my next heir male. To my son John twenty pounds at age of twenty five. The same to my son George. And I will that my wife shall keep the said John and George unto the Grammar School till they have learned their grammar, if their capacity will serve them. And that done, if, "hit" shall be thought good by my said wife, and the supervisors of this my testament, I will that their legacies before bequeathed unto them by this my testament shall be bestowed upon them in keeping of them at the University of Cambridge, and not otherwise to be paid unto them. To my daughter Margaret Downing twenty pounds at the age of twenty one. To my son Barnabe four score pounds, and so much of my household stuff as shall amount unto the sum of twenty pounds,—this after the departing of the said Cicely my wife if she keep herself sole and unmarried. To my son William five marks at the age of twenty one. The residue to my wife Cislle whom I ordain and make the executrix of this my testament and last will. And the supervisors. I ordain and make my well beloved cousin Robert Downing of All Saints Southelmham, Richard Crampton of Norwich.

Cope, 59.

[The beginning of the sixteen pages of this folio 59 of register Cope is the will of William Shakespeare, gentlemen, of Shalford on Avon, the parchment being loose and falling out of the book, as if some person had attempted to steal Shakespeare's will. I came across this registering in due course last year while preparing the next instalment (1605-1619) of the Calendar of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury for the British Record Society, a particularly troublesome but particularly interesting section, containing the wills of so many famous Elizabethians besides Shakespeare. The copy of Shakespeare's will shown to the public at Somerset House, is well known, is of course the original document in four sheets, containing his signature at the bottom of each sheet.—L. W.]

SALEM, MASS.
PRINTED FOR THE ESSEX INSTITUTE
1904

THE historical or genealogical student, searching for data in the cities and towns of eastern Massachusetts cannot consider his task completed until he has consulted the volumes of Historical Collections issued by the Essex Institute.

Valuable historical investigations from original sources are here brought to the attention of the scholar and a long list of public records and vital statistics have been printed in the pages of the Collections.

These Collections are published quarterly, each volume containing over 400 pages and an exhaustive index. The forty-first volume, beginning with the issue of January, 1905, will contain a large amount of original matter, such as, Beverly First Parish Church Records; Salem Custom House Registers, 1789-1900; English Records Relating to Early New England Families; Salem Town Records, Volume II; Proceedings at the Hawthorne Centennial; Pepperell Genealogy, and much other historical and miscellaneous matter.

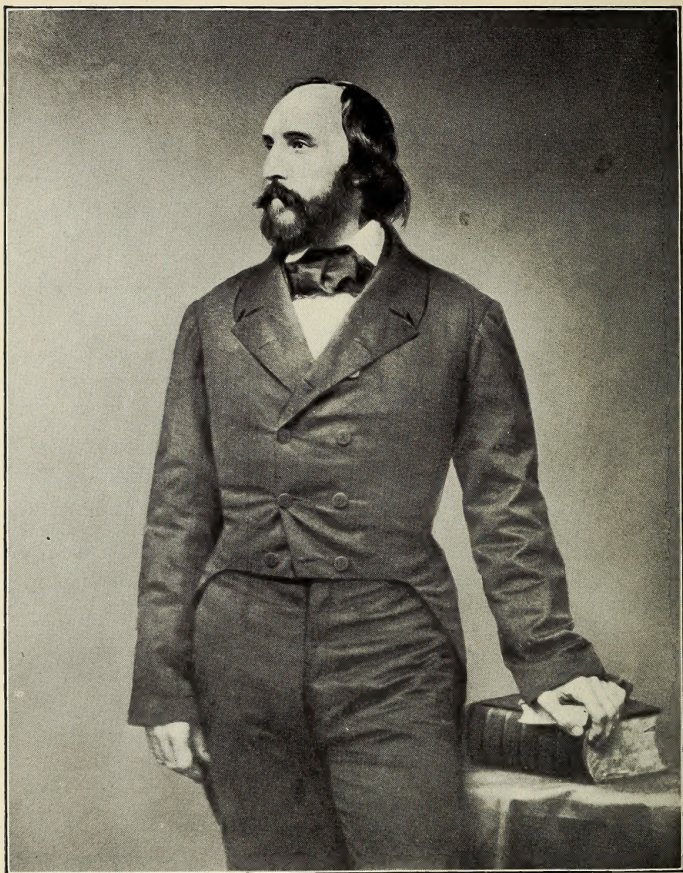

Among the genealogies to be found in the volumes already issued are the following: Allen, Bray, Chipman, Clark, Clarke, Conkling, Corwin, Esty, Fabens, Gardner, Gedney, Gould, Graves, Hawkes, Hutchinson, Houlton, Holton, King, Lyford, Newhall, Perkins, Pillsbury, Plummer, Prince, Rantoul, Richardson, Russell, Silsbee, Sparhawk, Townsend, Webb and Woodbury. Also records and vital statistics from Beverly, Boxford, Danvers, Hamilton, Ipswich, Lynn, Lynnfield, Marblehead, Peabody, Salem, Saugus, Topsfield and Wenham. Abstracts of wills, deeds and journals frequently appear; biographical sketches and memoirs; tombstone inscriptions, etc., etc.

Subscription $2.00 per annum.

No. 4

A SKETCH OF GENERAL FREDERICK W. LANDER,

CONTRIBUTED BY HIS BROTHER,

JUDGE EDWARD LANDER.

Frederick William Lander was born in Salem, Massachusetts, on the 17th of December, 1822, and died at Paw Paw, West Virginia, March 2, 1862. He was the son of Captain Edward and Eliza (West) Lander, and a view of the dignified mansion in which he was born illustrates this sketch. It is still standing in Barton Square. In his youth he was a leader among his playmates, noted for his courage, his love of manly sports, his spirit of adventure and his great personal strength. His stature was noble. He was as tall as Lincoln, and his weight in mature life was greatly above the average.

He was educated at Franklin and Dummer Academies, and studied Civil Engineering with Major Barton, at South Andover, showing himself a fair student with much intellectual power. He was also a pupil of Henry Kemble Oliver. He was first employed on the Eastern Railroad, and then on other Railroads, rising to the position of a Chief Engineer. In 1842-3, he took charge, for Salem capitalists, of the first ice-cutting enterprise established at Wenham lake, and under his supervision were built, at the eastern side of the lake, a group of ice-houses now removed,—a spur track to connect them with the Eastern railroad, a dwelling-house and extensive stables.

During this period Asa Whitney was agitating the question of a Pacific Railroad, which strongly attracted his attention from its novelty and the grandeur of the conception. In 1853, being offered the position of Chief Engineer of the Northern Pacific Survey by its Superintendent, the then Lieutenant of Engineers, Isaac I. Stevens, he gladly accepted it, and crossed the Northern Plains with that distinguished statesman and soldier, and as an engineer made a report upon the possibilities of the construction of a railroad through that new and unexplored region.

Thinking that a road from Puget Sound by the Columbia and Snake Rivers to the Mississippi River, connecting with a road to California, might be the one most likely to be built, he with funds furnished by himself and friends equipped a party early in 1854, and examined this line, arriving at the settlements with one man (who survived the hardships of the undertaking only a few weeks) out of the party who started with him.

His report of this survey or reconnoissance, of which ten thousand copies were printed under a resolution of the House of Representatives, explains the system of reconnoissance adopted, reviews the Pacific Railroad project, the different methods of construction available, the cash and credit system of building and the advantages of a connection with a road in California.

In furtherance of his views of the Pacific Railroad he acted for one year as Chief Engineer of the overland wagon road and afterwards for three years as its Superintendent. His energy and efficiency in these positions were highly praised by the then Secretary of the Interior in his Reports. The cut-off which bears his name, constructed North of Salt Lake, and other improvements on the road, were of great benefit to the immigration then crossing the plains. Attacked by a large party of Indians on one of these expeditions, their easy defeat, and their promise, afterwards kept, not to disturb the moving wagon trains was of still further benefit.

With General Lander on one of these expeditions was Bierstadt the artist, who brought home material for his famous paintings of Rocky Mountain scenery, and there were naturalists who reported to the Government on the flora and fauna of the unexplored solitudes they visited. A town in Arizona has been named for General Lander and a mountain peak also. Lander's Peak, with neighboring peaks and a foreground of tepees and Federal encampments, furnished one of the most interesting subjects which Bierstadt has put on canvas.

Of the large sums appropriated by Congress for the improvement of the overland route, and intrusted to him as Superintendent to disburse, he was enabled by the exercise of proper care, and without detriment to the public service, to return to the Treasury a large unexpended balance.

While not losing sight of the duty which he so faithfully discharged, he had not failed to study the problem of the Pacific Railroad.

In 1858, in compliance with a resolution of the House of Representatives requesting the Secretary of the Interior to furnish the House with any information communicated to him by F. W. Lander, "as to the practicability and method of construction of Railroads," he made a full and exhaustive report on the matter, and also advocated as the cheapest and best line of communication with, and defence of the whole Pacific Coast, a main line to Salt Lake with branches to San Francisco and Puget Sound. This report was printed by the House, and in connection with a speech made by him in San Francisco, in the fall of 1859, on the same subject, created a strong feeling in favor of such a railroad.

While his splendid dash,—his apparent insensibility to fear, and the aggressive tactics which never permitted him to be caught on the defensive, all singled him out from amongst ordinary men, and were well displayed in his successful conduct of the Pryor-Potter duel and of the important movement at Bloomery Gap, General Lander will be longest remembered for his invaluable service to the Country in connection with the great Pacific Railway System. For years he was associated with the overland mail-route through the Rocky Mountains, and this was a fine school in pioneering for one whose imagination was fired with enthusiasm for the stupendous project of which Col. Benton, Missouri's great Senator,—informed by the explorations of his son-in-law, Fremont,—was fairly to be called the chief supporter if not its father. General Lander possessed exactly the combination of qualities and of accomplishments to give him front rank in an enterprise of this sort. And his contact with the Indian tribes who infested, at that time, our Western frontier,—whether in the exercise of a wise diplomacy which won their confidence and secured their good-will,—whether in unmasking their dangerous artifice by a cunning equal to their own,—or whether in the delivery of his sledge-hammer strokes where their declared hostility was to be dealt with,—all these experiences marked him, in the pioneer history of the Northwest, as the Man for the Hour.

Returning from California, where in the fall of 1859 he had married Miss Jean M. Davenport, at the commencement of the Civil War he volunteered his services to General Scott, “in any capacity, at any time and for any duty.”

His most important employment by the Government at this time was on a mission to Governor Houston of Texas, with full authority to consult with him, and to order, if it was thought best, the troops then in Texas to support the Governor; an aid which was declined.

After serving on other important missions, he volunteered as aide to General McClellan and in the campaign in Western Virginia distinguished himself at Philippi, reconnoitering in front of one column of attack, taking charge of the artillery, and also bringing up the other column, riding through a portion of the enemy's forces to join it. At Rich Mountain he led the column with the guide through a pathless forest into the midst of the action, and displayed extraordinary activity and courage in the battle, his horse being shot from under him. Owing to the prominence that he had attained and the confidence placed in him by those then in power, he was the first to be created Brigadier General, his commission bearing date May 17th, 1861, and he was afterwards assigned to a command on the Upper Potomac.

Before the battle of Ball's Bluff, in which a part of his brigade was engaged, he had been ordered to Washington for consultation as to the opening of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and was not present at that disaster. Hurrying back to his command and undertaking a reconnaissance at Edward's Ferry, he was severely wounded in the leg.

Before the wound was properly healed, and reduced greatly in strength, knowing the importance of having the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad opened, he reported for duty, and on the 27th of December, 1861, was assigned to the command of the Western Division of the Army of the Potomac with that object in view, on which by request he had given his views at length on October 22nd, to General Scott.

On the 4th of January, 1862, while at Hancock on the Potomac, with a command of some four thousand men, General Jackson, afterwards famous, moved up to the opposite bank of the river, with a much larger force, and demanded the surrender of Hancock, receiving the answer that he might "come and take it."

Jackson proceeded to cannonade the town, and to build a bridge across the Potomac. He did not however attempt to cross and, on the 6th, retired from his position.

This advance of Jackson with a force estimated at 16,000 men compelled the evacuation of Romney, and a withdrawal to Patterson Creek to protect the railroad.

Largely reinforced in February Lander commenced offensive operations in most severe weather; the enemy was driven from Morefield; Romney was occupied; the force at Bloomery Gap was attacked and defeated, a large number of officers and men being taken prisoners. It was in this affair that a hesitancy was shown by the cavalry in obeying an order to charge upon the fort. On hearing the firing General Lander, with his staff, went to the front and ordered the halting regiment up the hill. The men, however, faltered under the Rebel fire, when Lander, crying out "Follow your General!" charged forward at the head of the column. Here, under a sharp fire, he halted for a moment and begged the men to remember their holy mission and follow their General to victory. He received the surrender of the Rebel officers in person. One column of infantry of 2000 men marched 43 miles through deep snow to make the attack, bridging a river with wagons while on the road. For this success he received a personal letter of thanks from the Secretary of War. He then determined to make an attack upon Jackson, at Winchester. The troops had started on this expedition, when, on the night of the 1st of March, he was seized with congestion of the brain and he died the next morning.

General Lander was a natural leader of men. In him combined physical strength, commanding presence, force of will, and a personal magnetism which drew to him all who came within his influence.

His photograph, taken at Washington by Brady, forms the frontispiece of this sketch, and does justice to his striking presence and stature. These he derived from his grandfather, Capt. Nathaniel West, and they stood him in good stead throughout his career and gave him great prestige in his dealings with the Red-men, and even impressed themselves so much upon his fellow officers in the Army that when it fell to the lot of Major General George B. McClellan,—associated with him before the War as a civil engineer in surveying for a railroad route through the Rocky Mountains,—to issue as his commanding officer an order announcing his death, General McClellan did not omit to refer to his personal bearing. These are General McClellan's words quoted from the general order of March 3, which enumerates in detail his distinguished services, already recognized by direction of President Lincoln in a War Department order dated February 17, three days after his brilliant success at Bloomery Gap,—and then adds :

"Tall of stature, and of great strength and activity, with a countenance expressive of intelligence, courage, and sensibility, General Lander's presence was commanding and attractive. As a military leader, he combined a spirit of the most daring enterprise with clearness of judgment in the adaptation of means to results. As a man, his devotion to his country, his loyalty to affection and friendship, his sympathy with suffering, and his indignation at cruelty and wrong, constituted him a representative of true chivalry. He has died in the flower of his manly prime, and in the full bloom of his heroic virtues; but history will preserve the record of his life and character, and romance will delight in portraying a figure so striking, a nature so noble, and a career so gallant. While paying his public tribute of respect, the General Commanding feels most deeply that, in the death of this brave and distinguished soldier, he has personally lost one of the truest and dearest of friends."

Nathaniel P. Willis who met him casually in Washington just after Ball's Bluff, described Lander as a sort of hippo-centaur, sitting his horse as though a part of him—"a magnificent specimen of the bush-ranger or prairie-trapper only that he was elegantly dressed in the uniform of an army officer."—"most powerfully built, he looked both active and indolent,—both stately and careless,—" and Willis quotes an enthusiastic old army surgeon who had been in Lander's command on a far-western exploration, to the effect that he was "of the very stuff that was needed,—" that he possessed the wonderful quality of the successful trapper and ranger,—that his prodigious feats of bodily endurance and achievement, and his sagacity in detecting and defeating the strategy of white or Indian antagonists alike, were well-nigh supernatural. Upon his joining the army, companies of his old mountaineer comrades to the number of more than a thousand, tendered him enthusiastically their well-tryed service.

The untimely loss of an officer from whom so much was looked for was mourned by the whole nation in various sections of which he had demonstrated his rare capacity and endeared himself to hosts of friends, and his death was widely lamented in verse of which the elegy by Thomas Bailey Aldrich was perhaps the most striking of these tributes.

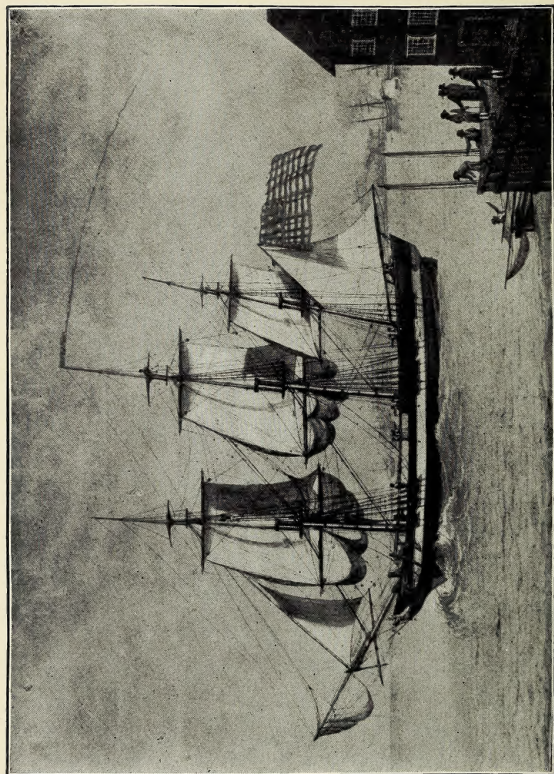

As he lay dying his command was just moving out for an attack on General (Stonewall) Jackson's camp near Winchester. Jackson had more than once paid tribute in print to his skill and daring. Perhaps, in the delirium preceeding death, he may not have been quite conscious of the movement going forward, or stirred by its martial tramp he may have been recalling earlier scenes of struggle and triumph. Whatever was his thought, like the Great Napoleon's his mind was with his soldiers to the end. His last articulate words were, "Don't sound the bugle!"

He was remarkable for the adaptation of means to ends; for carefully preparing beforehand all he thought necessary for success, and then moving with rapidity upon the object sought.

As a General he was successful in whatever he undertook; as a soldier, too careless of his own safety; as an explorer, the history of the great plains is his monument; as a Civil Engineer, his standing may safely rest on his reports upon the Pacific Railroad.

As a writer his style was terse and vigorous in the extreme; as a public speaker, his personal presence, strong will, and enthusiasm for the subjects on which he spoke, especially the Pacific Railroad, gave to him decided success; as a lecturer, his essays on the fine arts read in Washington in 1859 brought him great praise; nor did these striking characteristics alone show the whole intellectual power of the man; some of his poetry, thrown off as a relief from sterner duties, was of marked excellence.

To him Nature had been bounteous in her gifts, and his early death closed a career short indeed but full of a promise not to be fulfilled.

The "John" was one of the two large ketches built for Mr. Derby to use in the foreign trade and later altered to a ship, probably because the ketch rig proved unsuitable. She was a privateer in the War of 1812, carrying sixteen guns and one hundred and sixty men. After a short career of great success she was captured by an English frigate in Feb., 1813. There is a water-color painting of the "John" as a ship by Corné at the Essex Institute and a photograph of a painting at Peabody Academy of Science. THOMAS GARDNER, PLANTER, AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

BY FRANK A. GARDNER, M. D.

Simon Gardner was a baker, working with his father on March street for many years. He bought the house and lot on March street and carried on the bakery until 1839. He purchased of Michael Shepard, Oct. 1, 1839, a house and lot on the western side of Turner street south of Derby street.* He resided here and carried on his bakery until he retired from business about 1880. The Millett house on the corner of Turner and Derby streets was also owned by him. He was deeply interested in the various temperance movements. He was an active member of the Lafayette Street Methodist Episcopal Church, and Henfield Division, Sons of Temperance, upright and honest in his dealings with his fellow men, and respected by all.

Henry A. Gardner was a hairdresser by trade. He lived in Charlestown several years, later moving to Chelsea, and finally coming back to Salem about 1869. He was at one time connected with the American House in Boston. After his return to Salem, he located in Derby square, and was there and in Higginson square until his death. He owned at one time the house on the northeasterly corner of Margin and Downing streets, in Salem. This was conveyed to William S. Brazer, Apr. 14, 1849.¶ Mrs. Pope states that he at one time owned the Jacob Haskell house on Ward street and the Porter Farm in Danversport.

Bott married a Frye.

188 Jonathan Gardner, the third son of Simon and Rebecca (Knapp) Gardner, was a master mariner. According to family tradition he commanded a privateer named Polly in the war of 1812, but the writer has failed thus far to find proof of this statement in the records.

He married in Salem, October 9th, 1796,* Rachel Brown, daughter of John and Rachel (Kimball) Brown. She was born September 4, 1775, and died in Salem, April 25, 1876, aged 100 years, 7 months and 21 days.* She was a descendant of the following colonial immigrants;—George Frost, John Wakefield, Edmund Littlefield, Richard Kimball, Anthony Potter, John Whipple, Joseph Hilliard and others.

Jonathan Gardner and Rachel, his wife, with the other heirs of Mary Brown, singlewoman, conveyed to Josiah Fitz, of Salem, their right in a house and lot on the western side of Curtis street, now numbered 16, which had been conveyed "to sd Mary by her father John Brown, Oct. 13, 1827."‡

She lived with her youngest son William Frost Gardner for many years, and died at his house on Washington street near Lafayette. Throughout her long life she retained a sweet and loving disposition which endeared her to all, and caused her to be almost adored by her many descendants. She was admitted to the First Church in Salem, Aug. 5, 1797,§ and in 1831 united with the Second (now Central) Baptist Church by baptism. She was a devoted member of this church until her death.

Jonathan Gardner died in Salem in 1839.

ner is a prominent Baptist clergyman. He was educated at Colby University and Newton Theological Institution. The first pastorate held by him was at Winthrop, Mass., from 1882 to 1884. He next went to Lawrence, Mass., as pastor of the Second Baptist Church. In 1892, he became pastor of the Central Square Baptist Church in East Boston. He remained there until 1898, when he went to South Boston as pastor of the South Baptist Church. He has been eminently successful in his church work and large numbers have been added to the membership. The Christian Endeavor movement claimed his attention in the early days of its history and in 1897-8 he was State President of that organization.

William F. Gardner was a carpenter, retiring from active business about 1879. He purchased a lot of land of John Pickering on Endicott street, (numbered 55 later) and erected a house on the lot. He lived here until about 1870, when he built a new house for himself at No. 84 Mill street which was later numbered 284 Washington street, when the last named street was extended in 1874. He continued to reside there until his death. He was for many years a prominent member of the Central Baptist Church, but united with the First Baptist Church, by letter, Apr. 20, 1888.* He was a member of the Salem Charitable Mechanics Association, and Essex Lodge, I. O. O. F. He was a member of the Common Council in 1865. Honest and straightforward in all his dealings, he was a model husband, father and citizen, deeply beloved by those who were near to him and respected by all.

189 Samuel Knapp Gardner, the youngest son of Simon Stacey and Rebecca (Knapp) Gardner, was a mariner and later a well known shipping agent on Derby street in Salem. He lived in Turner street, then on Derby street, corner of White, and later on Pleasant street. During the last years of his life, he lived in a house on Central street, next north of the old Y. M. C. A. building.

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Samuel Gardner". The letters are fluid and connected, with a prominent 'S' at the beginning and a long, sweeping tail on the 'n'.
